

Council Won't Talk About Cedar Grove Plans

The Livermore City Council reversed its decision to hold a public hearing on the Cedar Grove Church's plans to build in South Livermore.

At its September 11 meeting, the council voted 3 to 2 to hear the matter at its Sept. 25 meeting. Mayor Marshall Kamena and Councilmember Lorraine Dietrich voted against the proposal, declaring that it was a county issue.

On Monday, Councilmember Tom Reitter asked the council to reconsider the decision. He joined Kamena and Dietrich in declining to hear the matter. Asked after the meeting why he had changed his mind, Reitter said, "People are very emotional on both sides of the issue. I thought it would be best for them to go directly to the county to express their opinions.

The Alameda County Plan-ning Commission is scheduled to hear the matter at its Oct. 2 meeting. The session begins at 6 p.m. in Hayward.

The land on which Cedar Grove Church proposes to con-struct new facilities is located within Alameda County's jurisdiction and the South Livermore Valley Area Plan. The church is planning for 75,000 square feet of new construction, plus a parking lot that accommodates 508 cars

Those supporting the church's plans say it is a religious issue. The opponents declare that it is about preserving the integ-rity of the South Livermore Plan. The church has received support for its plans from other churches in the area.

Friends of the Vineyards, the Tri-Valley Conservancy, and Livermore Valley Winegrowers Association are opposed to the Cedar Grove project.

Winery Wins Approval Of Bottling Plant

Concannon Vineyard's request to build a bottling plant at 4950 Tesla Road has the green light from Alameda County supervisors. They have rejected an appeal by a church group, seeking to build next door to the site.

Supervisors voted 4-0 at their meeting Sept. 14, to deny the ap-peal by Cedar Grove Community Church. The appeal, if approved, would have reversed the planning commission approval of the bot-ting plant. The plant will be ap tling plant. The plant will be an expansion and update of a current facility.

Four supporters, including an official of The Wine Group, owners of Concannon, made brief remarks in support of the bottling plant.

No one was present from the church. This failure to appear drew criticism from audience members and supervisor Scott Haggerty of Livermore, who made the motion to approve the plant Haggerty said from the dais before the vote, "It's disappointing. They appealed and didn't show up. It's a tremendous act of selfishness. Even more offen-sive, they don't think (the appeal) is harassment. If people want to play games with the board of supervisors. That will not make me happy." Haggerty's "harassment" re-mark apparently referred to the overall situation about The Wine Group and the church.

The church, which is located on College Avenue and South L St. in Livermore, has bought property next to the bottling plant, and wants to build a new campus with six buildings there. The Wine Group and supporters of wine country oppose it, say-ing that it would be inconsistent with the South Livermore Plan, which requires uses to support directly agricultural uses. It could even kill future agricultural investment in South Livermore.

Other speakers also framed the church's opposition in the same vein.

McKinley Day, who told the board that he is a candidate for Livermore school board, said that he thought the appeal was a "knee-jerk reaction by the church" over its own difficulty in the development process. "As a result, they tried to stop the winery from expanding.

Bob Baltzer, chair of Friends of Livermore, said the church's opposition to the plant was "nothing short of harassment, get-even tactics. I'm surprised to see it from a church group.'

Speaking to the Independent on Sept. 18 for the church, its business manager, Henry Mutz, denied the church was trying to harass The Wine Group. The church hoped the county would approve the bottling plant.

The church appealed the planning commission's favorable decision, because of what it sees as a double standard. The county is requiring a fully developed EIR for the church's application, compared to a much less expensive and less time-consuming negative declaration for The Wine Group's environmental mitigations.

The church's EIR will cover such things as noise, traffic, and impacts of its septic system on the underground water basin. The Wine Group should be required to do the same, said Mutz.

Mutz said on Sept. 18 that it was not necessary to attend the meeting. The church sent supervisors a letter that detailed its objection to granting the use. A copy of the five-page letter faxed

Winery Was "Part of the Family"

"Concannon the first One Hundred and Twenty Five Years" is more than a history of one of Livermore's oldest wineries.

It is the also the story of the Concannon family as told by Jim Concannon, the grandson of the founder James Concannon. As the book notes, "The winery wasn't a business the family owned; it was part of the family.'

By Patricia Koning The Livermore School Board of Trustees last week considered whether to put surplus money into new and expanded programs, or to repay monies the District borrowed from several accounts during the fiscal crisis.

The Board is considering spending the $625,000 set aside in last year's budget for Measure D replacement, as well as additional money from increased state funding and decreased costs. Susan Kinder, Director of Fiscal Services, says the District has a projected ending balance for the 2006/07 school year of approximately $7.735 million over the reserve.

That amount is about $2 million higher than the projected balance at the end of the 2005/ 06 school year. The difference is due to several factors, among them unfilled positions, good interest revenue, decreased special education costs, and the lower-than-expected cost of utilities. The District budgeted for a 15% increase in utilities but the actual increase is around 3%.

The District is currently negotiating salary increases and other items with the Livermore Education Association. The outcome of these negotiations could have a big impact on the budpaying back $330,000 the Dis-trict borrowed from its cafeteria fund and $700,000 borrowed from Measure L funds. The District borrowed from these funds in order to meet the mandatory 3% reserve requirement in the 2003/04 school year.

"I'm trying to look at the whole picture," says Morrison. "I think we need to pay back these loans and commitments before talking about bringing programs back.

The Board voted unanimously to spend $62,000 to hire seven counselors for grades 7-12. This money supplements nearly $500,000 in state funds designated for counselors to focus on intervention plans for students at risk of not graduating from high school.

Another consideration was spending $75,000 to add another full-time elementary music teacher so that the program can accommodate all interested students. Currently students must test into the program. A total of 89 students were turned away last year.

Elementary Music Director Randy Watson cautioned the Board that the issue with elementary music is a function of space more than staff.

"For the fourth grade string ees unanimously endorsed the future Pleasanton Firehouse Art Center, because it is a place that students will get practice and recognition for their artistic efforts.

The city, in partnership eco-nomically with the Pleasanton Cultural Arts Foundation, is converting its 1928 downtown firehouse into a structure with a new addition. It will house a 240-seat theater, an art gallery, and two classrooms.

John Loll, foundation treasurer, told school trustees at their meeting Sept. 12 that the foundation hopes the center will open in 2008, with a groundbreaking in spring 2007. "However, there are a lot of un-knowns, including whether we can bring a 1928 building to modern code."

Loll emphasized the center will be an excellent outlet for students' work. They can exhibit in the gallery, have school performances in the theater, and the instructional rooms may be used for in-service education of teachers. He showed a short digital film of architectural renderings of the facility

Trustee Pat Kernan said that newer residents of the district

Search Is Underway for New Site for Friendship Center

The Livermore Area Recreation and Park District Board narrowed down its search for a new location for its Friendship Center to four sites.

Currently, the adult day care program shares Sonoma School with the Livermore Valley Charter School. However, the charter school's expansion plans mean the Friendship Center must find a new location.

The program last year served 62 clients at various times; 33 from Livermore, 21 from Pleasanton, 3 from Dublin, 2 from San Ramon, and one each from Tracy, Danville and San Francisco.

The main problem facing LARPD is time. The school district is evicting theprogram June 2007 to provide space for the charter school. Any of the site options being considered will

Supervisors Overturn OK For Mines Road Events Center

Alameda County Supervisors overturned a decision by the East County Board of Zoning Adjustment (BZA) to approve an events center at 3721 Mines Road.

Supervisors voted 4-0 at their meeting Sept. 14 to strike down the approval of the conditional use permit, which had been granted to Augustine and Judy Garcia.

Speaking for the couple, Judy Garcia told supervisors that the events center was an outgrowth of her vision for a place for weddings and spirituality classes that she, as a minister, would be conducting. She has been performing weddings for 11 years, and has a spirituality class of 25 people weekly.

'We don't want a 24/7 business lifestyle. We want to slow down the pace," Judy Garcia said about herself and her husband, who does landscaping. He

"Our financial situation improved considerably last year. We're now in the position to considering additional restorations or new programs," says Su-perintendent Brenda Miller.

She presented the Board with a list of 14 options totaling about $1.3 million. Trustee Bill Morrison recommended first

Taylor Dayne Kicks Off Civic Arts Presents Season

Pleasanton Civic Arts Presents unveiled its 2006-07 program last week.

It offers something for everyone from comedy to dance and literary programs, and award winning artists.

"Our audiences tell us they want more music, more dance, more comedy, more family entertainment, and more literary presentations," said Civic Arts Manager Andy Jorgensen. "We have aspired to satisfy all of them with one of our most dynamic calendars ever.'

The season kicks of September 23 with Grammy nominated songstress Taylor Dayne. She will perform her hit songs, such as Tell It To My Heart," and "Love Will Lead You Back.'

Other music programs include

The Edlos will perform a holiday program on Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. Spyro Gyra's Feb. 16 program will include music from three decades of jazz hits, as well as new selections from its recent 'Wrapped in Dream" album. Rod Piazza and On April 13, The Mighty Flyers will bring jazzy blues in a combination of low-down Chicago grit, West Coast swing, jazz, rhythmic early R&B, and rock and roll.

Pleasanton Chamber Endorses Council Candidates; But Not the Mayor

The Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce has endorsed incumbent Jerry Thorne and newcomer Cheryl Cook-Kallio for City Council. There was no endorsement for mayor.

Council candidates include Thorne, Cook-Kallio, Dan Faustina and Brian Arkin. Running for mayor are incumbent Jennifer Hosterman and Councilmember Steve Brozosky.

The Chamber, in a press release, notes that Thorne's long and significant business career, as well as his active participation in the affairs of Pleasanton over the years has been exemplary.

He was elected to the City Council in the last election and is an advocate of streamlining the processes involved in cutting red tape. Like some others, he believes issues should be addressed by listening to all perspectives, but solved on the basis of the city's overall best interests.

He believes that traffic is a key regional issue, not just a local one.

The Chamber believes Thorne is a positive influence on the Council and a successful and increasingly influential participant in the city and the region. The press release adds, "We would like to see more assertive representation from Mr. Thorne. A full four-year term will allow him to support and lead the city's interests on the council. Accordingly, we endorse and support his re-election.

Cook-Kallio, the press release

She does not appear to have any long-term political ambitions beyond community service in the city she loves.

Cook-Kallio believes that business is essential to the city's well-being and should be an active participant in the gover-nance of the city. She also believes it is important, in addressing issues, to make sure that lo-cal or neighborhood perspectives are considered (and accommodated whenever possible), but that the overall welfare of the community as a whole must come first. "She struck us as an insightful and thoughtful decision maker with a balanced and

Time to Repay the Lord

Josh Keen, 27-year-old Livermore resident, thanks God for saving his life on two occasions. He was mauled by a tiger at the Alameda County Fair when he was 6. In 1994 he almost died in a fire.

"Both times I should have died, but didn't. They were miracles. It made me realize there is more to life than just me. I made a commitment to do service to the Lord because He had spared me," Josh says.

Seeking to fulfill that com-mitment, he has signed up with Monte Christo Ministries (MCM) to spend three years in South Africa ministering to a community where AIDS and poverty are rampant.

According to Josh, MCM's work is centered around transforming South Africans to Christ, a transformation MCM believes will produce future generations of leaders empowered to overcome the society's problems.

"I will be ministering to the poor to remove the barriers that hinder spiritual transformation, health, education and economic progress," explains Josh.

He will serve as assistant camp director, helping to run camps and a retreat center. His duties will

Would Cal-OSHA Allow That Now?

Ferdinand "Fred" Holdener, a native of Switzerland, bought the Valley Dairy in Livermore in 1931. By the time Holdener moved to Livermore he was a widower with three children, Fred, Carl, and Marie—Fred the oldest at age 10. The children attended St. Michael's School and then Livermore High. The Valley Dairy, on Stanley Boulevard (then the Pleasanton Road) just west of what is now the Valley Memorial Hospital, had 15 acres of open fields, with plenty of room for pasture. In the dairy barn Holdener, his workers, and his sons milked the cows and processed the milk—at first raw, and later, starting in 1936, pasteurized. They delivered glass bottles of milk to stores and homes in Liver-more, Pleasanton, Dublin, and Sunol. The cows were milked twice a day. The Holdeners served a morning and an afternoon route.

Carl remembered going with his father on the morning route, starting at 5:30. "I'd run up to the houses, it was still dark. I really didn't know what Livermore looked like until summertime came."

didn't know what Livermore looked like until summerume came. When the boys were old enough, they drove Valley Dairy panel trucks on the routes. Carl described the process in an interview for the Tri-Valley Herald in 1999: "You drove (the truck) standing up. You'd pull a handle, jump out while it slowed down, deliver milk, and jump back on while it was still moving. It was the damnedest thing. You think Cal-OSHA would allow that now?"

Both Carl and Fred were excellent athletes. However, Carl noted that his hardworking father never had time to watch their high school games. Carl won the MVP award from the Eagles in 1942 for his outstanding work in football as receiver and quarterback. The Herald's sports writer praised him: "Holdener was a gambler in his direction of team play, calling for razzle dazzle moves even when deep in his own territory, making every game a thriller." Carl and young Fred served during World War II. Their sister, Marie, filled in for them on the milk route.

In 1951 Fred Holdener Sr. sold his delivery route to Carnation Milk Company. For the next five years the Holdeners sold milk in bulk to Carnation. In 1956 the Holdeners added a drive-in, at the time an innovative concept, and changed the name from Valley Dairy to Holdener Drive-In Dairy.

The processing plant was modernized. Paper milk cartons were featured instead of glass. A half-gallon of milk sold for 38 cents. Customers could buy whole milk, low-fat, nonfat, chocolate, whipping cream, and buttermilk. Children from local schools often came with their teachers for a dairy tour which ended with an ice cream treat for everyone.

Because of low milk prices and the pressure for development in Livermore, the Holdener's sold 10 of their 15 acres in 1966. Fred Sr. retired that year and left the business to his sons. Fred Jr. and his wife, Elsie, bought the Holdener Drive-In Dairy.

Carl bought the Holstein dairy herd of 300 head, which included 160 milking cows, and moved them to Tracy, where he and his wife, Betty, had 211 acres. Here, Carl raised alfalfa and corn to feed the herd. Brother Fred purchased raw milk from Carl and brought it in an insulated tanker to the Livermore plant for processing and botinclude teaching, overseeing small groups and working in the office.

Josh needs to raise funds to finance his ministry, $15,000 to cover start-up costs and $2500 a month to pay for his ongoing expenses. He launched the fund-raising about two months ago. To date he has received commitments for approximately 20% of the sums needed.

Josh was born in Livermore in 1979, the only child of "great Christian parents," in his words. He graduated from Valley Christian High School in 1998 and at-tended Biola University in Southern California from 2001-2004. He says his work in South nity to attend graduate school, at the South African Theological Seminary. Josh makes his living in business, managing projects for Bay Area software companies.

tling Fred Sr. died III1978

On 15 December 1980, Fred and Elsie Holdener closed the drive-in dairy and sold the remaining five acres to a developer. The Taco Bell at Peppertree Plaza now has the dairy's street address—985 E. Stanley Boulevard. The advent of large retail grocery chains and the squeeze of expanding housing and taxes had taken their toll on the Mom and Pop business.

Fred and Elsie Holdener donated the old farmhouse to the Livermore Heritage Guild. It was moved to its current site at 2343 Col-lege Avenue in June 1981 by the Spaeth family, who bought it from the guild for $1,000. Standing before about 1878, the old redwood house built with square nails predated any dairy farm at the Stanley Boulevard site; perhaps it was built by a member of the Mendenhall family.

After the dairy closure, Fred and Elsie enjoyed traveling with friends in several California Swiss clubs. A charter member of the Livermore organization Sons in Retirement #101, he became an avid bowler with the group. He died in 1993. Former customers still tell stories of his generosity and kindness. Carl and Betty Holdener sold their Tracy farm property and dairy herd, but Carl helped his son, Robert, in raising tomatoes, safflower, and alfalfa on Union Island in the Delta. Even after moving to Tracy, Carl remained active in the Livermore Stockman's Rodeo Association; he was on the board for 20 years. When he was grand marshal of the 1999 rodeo parade, he was still competing in team roping and team penning at the age of 76. He died, the last survivor of his siblings, in September 2004.

In 2005 LARPD named the new park on Hansen Road, off Arroyo Road, after the Holdener family.

VALLEY ROUNDUP

Prop 89 Endorsed

The Sierra Club California has endorsed Proposition 89, an initiative on the November ballot that will enact a broad system of public financing of political campaigns for all statewide offices. The initiative is supported by the League of Women Voters, Common Cause and California Clean Money Campaign, and sponsored by the California Nurses Association.

If passed by California voters on November 7th, Proposition 89 would establish a voluntary "Clean Money" system for full public funding of election campaigns modeled upon successful programs already in place in Arizona and Maine and recently adopted by Connecticut.

It is designed to level the election playing field, open up the ballot to more good candidates, and stop political corruption by making elected officials accountable to voters, not big money donors, according to a Sierra Club press release.

Vice President of APS

Cherry Murray, the deputy director for Science and Technology at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, has been elected vice president of the American Physical Society (APS) for 2007. The assignment begins January 1, 2007, and will last four years.

Following her year as vice president, she will successively become president elect, president independent viewpoint."

She shares the Chamber's view that extending Stoneridge Drive is a critical part of the future infrastructure of Pleasanton that should not be removed from the General Plan.

Cook-Kallio is concerned that the city's housing costs are so high that residents' children may never be able to live here and that efforts should be made to ensure that some of the city's housing stock is more affordable. She also believes the city's permit process needs to be streamlined.

The chamber provided reasons for not endorsing a mayoral candidate.

The chamber states, "We've had enough 'avoid the tough issues' type leadership; we're ready for a Mayor who will lead our community through these challenges smartly, openly and decisively."

"Ón a personal level, we like and respect Jennifer Hosterman. If re-elected, we will look forward to continuing to work with her as Mayor. But, because of her views about the role of mayor, the role of Pleasanton in world geopolitics and the roles of business and government in a free economic society, we are not able to endorse Ms. Hosterman."

"We are concerned that not all of Brozosky's responses align with previous actions. For example, we are concerned about his prior lack of leadership and vision on housing issues, including his exclusion of affordable senior housing on the Bernal property via Measure V and in the Vintage Hills redevelopment project. What's more, he, like other candidates, has focused more on neighborhood traffic solutions than citywide solutions outlined in our current General Plan. While the Staples Ranch MOU is a step in the right direction, it falls short of the leadership we feel is necessary to truly improve local traffic circulation.

"Brozosky has clearly learned what the business community thinks is important and knows how to frame his comments to be consistent with that. We hope that if elected, his actions will indeed match his current positions."

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS ENDORSE BROZOSKY

School board trustees Kris Weaver, Juanita Haugen, Pat Kernan, Board President Steve Pulido and former trustee Gloria Fredette added their names to the growing list of local and regional officials supporting and endorsing Pleasanton City Councilmember Steve Brozosky in his bid to become the next mayor of Pleasanton.

These endorsements follow those of Alameda County Supervisor Scott Haggerty as well as current City Councilmember and former school board trustee Cindy McGovern.

"It is critical for the Pleasanand then immediate past president. Throughout the four years Murray will be a member of the council and executive board, and will chair both bodies while serving as president.

APS has long been considered one of the most noteworthy scientific societies in the nation. Founded in 1899 out of Cornell, its mission is to "advance and diffuse the knowledge of physics." Today, membership consists of more than 40,000 members. APS publishes Physical Review and Physics Today, among other publications. APS is active in public and governmental affairs, and in the international physics community. Last year APS led U.S. participation in the World Year of Physics, a 100-year celebration of Albert Einstein and some of his most important theories.

APS also monitors the human rights of scientists around the globe, and recognizes professional accomplishment with a spectrum of prizes, awards and the election of APS Fellows

As vice president Murray will serve on APS's Panel of Public Affairs and chair the Fellowship Committee, including the Congressional Fellow Selection Committee. As president, she will speak for the APS in a variety of forums, award APS prizes and represent APS on the Council of Scientific Society Presidents.

Murray will continue to serve as deputy director at Lawrence Livermore throughout her term at APS.

> anton Liaison Committee have yielded results that directly benefit the children and families of Pleasanton. Steve's leadership on the City Council was critical in helping fund new sports fields for the community at Donlon Elementary School. We look forward to working with Steve when he is elected mayor," stated school board president Steve Pulido.

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS SOLIDLY ENDORSE JILL BUCK

The Jill Buck campaign for the 18th Assembly District seat has the support of local and state law enforcement officials. Among those endorsing Buck are Alameda County Sheriff Charles Plummer, Pleasanton Police Chief Tim Neal, Peace Officers Research Association of California (PORAC), Bay Area Peace Officers Research Association, and the Alameda County Deputy Sheriff's Association.

In a letter dated September 13, Ron Cottingham, President of California PORAC, stated, "PORAC prides itself on carefully scrutinizing the qualifications of every candidate. We believe that your experience, integrity, willingness to address community concerns, and demonstrated dedication to public safety, makes you truly deserving of the PORAC endorsement. We look forward to working with you toward victory in your election."

might "take the arts programs for granted. However, previously schools boards, including (current trustee) Juanita Haugen, helped to preserve them. We cut out busing to save programs 10 years ago."

On another item, trustees heard Rich Puppione, senior director of pupil services, state that the district enrollment has grown by 73 students over the same date last year. This was good news, because it means the district will receive more state money, since the formula is figured on total student count.

However, the population distribution of high school students had trustee Kris Weaver concerned. There is an especially big discrepancy in the freshman class, with 703 at Amador Valley and 546 at Foothill high schools. "I don't think it's an anomaly," said Weaver.

There is concern that Amador may become too crowded. The board made a decision to community is invited to attend and listen to each candidate discuss their visions for making Pleasanton a better place to live, work and retire. This will not be a debate. It will be conducted under the Pleasanton Rules of Etiquette. Before each candidate speaks, the host will read a brief biography. Candidates will be given up to six minutes to describe their goals, plans, and or visions.

Following the sixth speech, candidates will answer questions at some six different locations within the sanctuary as they rotate their positions to meet as many citizens as possible. Refreshments will be coffee allow open enrollment from certain areas, which apparently contributed to the imbalance. However, the board also agreed to look at the high school attendance boundaries again, said Weaver.

Board president Steve Pulido said that he agreed another look is needed.

Superintendent John Casey said he will have staff prepare material about it and bring it to the board.

The board also heard a short report on the fact that the district for the first time took part in a pre-kindergarten program sponsored by First 5 of Alameda County during summer school. There were 30 children, 15 of whom were non-English speakers. Three-Fourths of the students were bilingual Spanish, and 45 minutes a day were spent on language instruction.

First 5 professional also conducted health and academic screenings.

EDITORIAL

Fast Wheels

Wheels will launch bus rapid transit within two years under a plan approved by the Livermore Amador Valley Transportation Agency (LAVTA) last week.

The plan will put "fast buses" on Wheels' No. 10 line, which travels from the Livermore Lab through Livermore and Pleasanton to Dublin/Pleasanton BART. The present No. 10 buses will continue making their regular stops. The fast buses will make fewer stops (downtown Pleasanton may be bypassed). They'll run every 15 minutes initially, perhaps half that time later. They'll be going all day, not just during commute hours.

"This is really meant to appeal to people who have not tried transit, who've thought it's too slow," said Barbara Duffy, LAVTA general manager.

It's a terrific plan, we believe. Though this isn't the BART station that Livermore has long been promised, the fast buses can serve as a rapid transit alternative until BART has funds for the station. In the meantime, the Valley's transit planners will have an opportunity to evaluate just how successful buses can be in meeting rapid transit needs. With their cheaper costs and route flexibility, fast buses may have a future whether or not the BART extension ever occurs.

planned to add a small nurserv to his property in connection with his work.

The Garcia Events Center changed its name to the Sweet Remembrances Ministry and Events Center during the application process.

Weddings already have been held there, neighbors have said. They said that, in effect, the property was used as an events center for the past two years, but ille-gally, until the East County Board of Zoning Adjustment granted the conditional use permit.

Garcia disputed the assertion. She said that the weddings held at the property were not commercial. They were events by family or friends. Agriculture would be enhanced by her husband's plans for a small nursery there, to support his landscaping business, but not as a retail drive-up operation.

She said that all of the neighbors' objections were mitigated in the conditional use permit.

Neighbors objected to the increased traffic that an events center brings. Parking, traffic count, and safety were big issues for them, since Mines Road is narrow, and has a narrow shoulder at that point. Overflow parking on the side of the road would block the bicycle lane and may come Garcias were neighbors Michael Harris and Sblend Sblendorio, who was a member of the BZA when that board unanimously approved the permit. Sblendorio since resigned, because he was appointed to county Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) by supervisor Scott

Haggerty. Harris, who lives one-half mile away from the Garcias, said "a lot of neighbors don't have a problem. The noise is no more than (that from) bird cannons. Traffic is no more than from the Pumpkin Patch." (The Pumpkin Patch is a Mines Road farm property that sells pumpkins annually before Halloween.)

Sblendorio, speaking for him-self and not the BZA, said that he prompted the Garcias to host an open house for neighbors, which was well attended, to show which was well attended, to show this "is not a sky-is-falling" problem. "They held events with no permit. That was wrong. They had fires in the sum-mon That was done at the summer. That was dangerous. But give them a chance," said Sblendorio.

He said he would encourage native species to be planted on the property, instead of using so much water from the on-site well. He'd also add a condition of no amplified music, and require flag attenuants on the road as the traffic turns into and out of the property, as is done with the Pumpkin Patch in October. When supervisors had their discussion before voting, Haggerty asked planning staff whether anyone could have events on a 2-acre site in the South Livermore Plan. Planner Bruce Jensen said "yes. Haggerty responded, "So it's an open door? When we looked at the Purple Orchid (bed and breakfast) we made them plant 18 acres of olives and set all the conditions. Are we changing this? Community development director Chris Bazar explained that when the South Livermore Plan started, there may have been wider latitude about such uses as an events center. With a history of actions now on the books, "we'd look at it differently." Perceptions of wine country have changed over the past 10 years. Staff could use some new guidance about what the supervisors want as policy, said Bazar. Haggerty said that it is important to have a work session on the issue. "This (the Garcia events center issue) cuts to the core of whether we support agriculture or not," he said. Stony Ridge Winery was made to conform to rules about a restaurant and septic tank requirements.

Walk the Talk Dan Carl Pleasanton

Pleasanton's Mayor has re-ceived a great deal of free press on her global agenda. Surpris-ingly, she doesn't walk the talk in her own household.

Her Financial Disclosures on file with the City of Pleasanton show that while she was pushing for no oil exploration in ANWR at the US Conference of Mayors, she owned stock in an oil and gas drilling company (Petroleum De-velopment Corporation), a foreign oil tanker company (Top Tankers) and had owned stock in an oil refining company (Valero) in 2005. Decreasing the avail-able supply of oil in the US would cause stock in the Mayor's portfolio to increase in value while the rest of us pay more at the pump! Meantime she and her family drive a fuel guzzling SUV and foreign made luxury cars. This is "one rule for the ruled, another rule for the ruler.

Ms. Hosterman is using whatever means possible to promote herself for a future run for Congress or State Assembly while living hypocritically at home. Unfortunately, the Mayor is not getting the job done on the General Plan or addressing our increasing traffic congestion. Let's act lo cally and elect a new mayor this November who will focus on Pleasanton first.

Cedar Grove Project Alex Abey Livermore

The Alameda County Planning Commission has decided to delay its decision on whether to approve Cedar Grove Community Church's application to build a large facility on land currently designated for agricultural use under the South Livermore Valley Area Plan. The postponement of the decision until October 2nd gives those concerned about this inappropriate use of valuable agricultural land time to voice their opinions to the Commission.

The construction of a multi-building compound with over 500 paved parking spaces is clearly an urban development, and is not in keeping with the intent of the SLVAP. It is essential to the success of Livermore's wine area that a bucolic and rural setting be maintained in this area. For wineries to be successful in attracting visitors a certain ambiance must be maintained, and a large non-agricultural building project like this not compatible with that ambiance. The fact that the site is so close to the developed fringe of Livermore makes it essentially an Livermore makes it essentially an extension of the urban area by a further half mile along South Livermore Ave. The perception currently is that wine region starts at the Retzlaff winery on South Livermore Ave. If this project is approved, Retzlaff will no longer feel like the start of the wine area but will instead feel wine area, but will instead feel like an island of vines within the urban area which will then ex-tend past the CGCC area.

It is also troubling to see an outside pressure group like the Becket Fund threatening legal action to override the SLVAP, action to override the SLVAP, which is generally agreed to be an excellent piece of planning work supported by the vast ma-jority of local citizens. Livermore does not need to mimic Napa and Sonoma to cre-ate a thriving wine-oriented des-tination, but it is imperative that creeping urbanization not be al-lowed to swallow rural land. The planning authorities in St Hellowed to swallow rural land. The planning authorities in St. Hel-ena, Calistoga and Sonoma would never allow something like this to happen, and neither should Livermore.

Cedar Grove Charles Swift Livermore

I was dismayed by the Independent's editorial (8/31/ 06) regarding Cedar Grove's ap-plication to build a church on South Livermore Ave. It exhibits an unrealistic perspective of the issue and a shortsighted under-standing of the future. You seem to think that Livermore, as we know it, will come to an end if Cedar Grove is allowed to build a church in the vicinity of those precious grape vines. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

I have nothing against grapes or wine. Wine is a fine drink. But the fundamental value of wine to our society is not all that important. As a matter of fact, on a scale of one to ten, growing grapes for wine is probably only about a three. With tobacco farming being a one and parsnips being a two. From your editorial's perspective, vineyards are more important than freedom of religion. Come on now, that's far fetched, even by California standards.

Your compatibility argument totally misses the point and shows a lack of reasonable foresight. All of us who have lived in Livermore for the last few decades have seen vineyards and rose gardens covered with housing tracts. So don't try to tell us that within the next decade there will not be high density housing developments allowed along South Livermore Ave. and Tesla Rd. Come on now, is the future going to be different from the past? Are we only imagining those new homes on Vasco getting closer and closer to the vineyards? In ten years Cedar Grove's acreage will look like open space.

Finally, those individuals causing this controversy have overlooked the fact that they are going to need the good will of all the citizens of Livermore when they try to pass bonds for vineyard irrigation. That could be a painful oversight.

Iraq War Cynthia Bryant Pleasanton

I read in the Independent today that "Pleasanton Council Won't Talk about the War." It is a real disservice to the troops and our community that 'we the people' cannot help end the war the way we did with the Viet Nam "Police Action." We weren't even supposed to call it a war and much like the Iraq War, it was begun under false pretenses with ulterior motives in mind.

I want to say to Cindy

Two Livermore Programs Honored for Excellence

The City of Livermore was named as a double Grand Prize winner, receiving the prestigious Helen Putnam Award for Excellence in two categories during the opening session of the League of California Cities' Annual Conference in San Diego, September 6-9.

Livermore received a Grand Prize award in the Community Services and Economic Development category for the Children's Health Access Partnership. The other Grand Prize was awarded in the Internal Administration category for a Street-Level Imagery project.

these awards. I really congratulate them." Established in 1982, the Helen Putnam Award program recog-nizes outstanding California cit-ies that deliver the highest quality and level of service in the most effective manner possible. Livermore was the only city to receive two Grand Prizes this year. The Children's Health Access Partnership was recognized for developing an integrated program to provide access to medical care and food programs for elementary school children who come from low income and im-bono services to more than 50 children annually (funded by the Children's Health Grant Program). Seed money was provided by an Alameda County Partner-ship Grant awarded by Supervisor Scott Haggerty.

Food programs include the Marylin Avenue School food pantry that disperses over 100 bags of food per month to their students and students at Portola Elementary; Open Heart Kitchen that provides over 400 weekend boxed lunches to all children in the federal free school lunch program; an education-based bilingual story time program at

Troops were and are hurt in lots of ways, PTSD, bombs and guns, but mostly by being put in harms way and for no good reason. #### Churches in the Vineyards Rich Buckley Livermore

Churches are okay in the Livermore wine country. Let's focus on setting detailed, high quality, design standards for approval which all church facilities wishing to locate in the South Livermore Valley Wine Country would be held to, rather than declaring churches as altogether inappropriate to the area. If you throw enough money at design, quality, and standards, eventually churches start looking pretty good and can be real architectural gems that could add to the settings and ambiance. Set the standards high.

Please don't block our churches in the wine county. There's lots of room for everyone out there. There's over 15,000-plus acres plus many times that in the surrounding parks and hills. Just set the standards high. That really is, after all, the romantic ambiance and draw of the region: quality, beauty, fine wines. I mean really, would anyone object if we all held a Sunday morning worship service at Wentes out at Arroyo? Of course not. Why? Because the facilities are beautiful at Wentes. It's a joy to go visit them for their beauty and quality of service.

Let the churches participate in this beautiful area, just hold to high quality design standards.

novative use of technology, saving time, money and providing an indispensable service to em-ployees. The City of Livermore recently began using a new soft-ware product by @City, Inc. called iStreetView. The browserbased application links multiple photo images with digital map files from the City's Geographic Information System. The result allows the user to virtually "drive" the city streets from any computer on the City's network.

The Street-level Imagery Project has resulted in a notable savings in staff time previously spent on field visits. Field conditions can be viewed within a out even farther into the road. The opponents showed slides of a blind curve at the property's edge, which adds to the danger.

Patti Ising, who filed the appeal, and Carol Frydendal, another Mines Road resident, said the property use does not conform to the South Livermore Plan. Events center uses in the South Livermore Plan should be directly supportive of agricultural uses. For example, a winery might have an events center in conjunction with its business, to promote its business.

Ising called the Garcia vision a "large, commercial operation on two acres." She said that the property is zoned for "personal use.

Mines Road resident Mary Ann Foote said the use would pose a safety threat to bike riders, who come down Mines Road on weekends on recreational rides. She also expressed concerns as to whether traffic control at events and "alcohol monitoring" of guests could be accomplished successfully.

One resident read a letter from neighbor Paul Santucci, who lives at 3940 Mines Road. He said that music at past events at the Garcias' property was loud. Tesla Road is the place to have events centers, he said.

Bob Baltzer, chair of Friends of Livermore, said that the Garcia property's ties to agriculture "are vague, and look tossed-in" to try to meet the South Livermore Plan requirement of an agricultural tiein with an events center.

Harriet Cole, president of Friends of the Vineyards, said that "everyone wants to come in and cash in" on the South Livermore wine country and its plan. Too much commercialization will kill wine country, she said. "If you do this, others will come in, and soon you will ruin the plan. Wineries won't come and spend the money, if we trash our plan," said Cole.

Appearing in support of the

"At no time did we say that they could buy five porta-potties, and it's OK," said Haggerty.

Following the vote to reject the Garcia's conditional use permit, supervisors made it clear that there will be a work session on current attitudes about events centers and the South Livermore Plan. No date was set for discussion.

Interviewed about her appeal victory, Ising said that she was happy to see that Haggerty and the board "took seriously the intent and spirit and values of the South Livermore plan.'

One objection from the church has been that some of the square footage of the bottling plant, which will include office space and conference rooms, might be used as an events center. The winery hasn't been held to account in detail about that, said attorney Doyle's letter.

David Kent, chief executive of The Wine Group, told supervisors that there is no plan for an events center. The rooms are "standard meeting rooms, just as you have in this building (the county administration building in Oakland). They are for sales and marketing, and would replace rooms used for the same Currently, parents pay several hundred dollars out of pocket for each high school sport in which a student participates. Van Schaack said he would use the additional funding to offset that amount by about $40. Livermore High School Principal Stephen Bering said he would put it towards additional scholarships and transportation to athletic events.

A proposal to spend $18,750 on a K-9 detection program met with some controversy. The program would consist of random and scheduled middle and high school visitations throughout the school year by dogs trained to detect drugs, alcohol, and items associated with gunpowder.

"I'm not in favor of using K-9 detection on campus because I'm afraid we'll violate students' rights," said Trustee Tom McLaughlin.

Orvis questioned if the tradeoff between the costs of K-9 detection, both in terms of dollars and students' rights, would be worth the benefit. Trustee Anne White noted that the Board did approve K-9 detection at one point in the past. She said she would be happy to vote for it again.

The other options discussed were $40,000 for targeted student achievement services; $200,000 for physical education teachers to provide one hour of weekly instruction for fourth and fifth grade students; $20,000 to fund character education programs (one-time cost); $30,000 to fund one-half of the cost of the Child Welfare & Attendance (CWA) Bilingual Specialist; $100,000 to develop career technical education; $132,501 for reading intervention; $10,000 for Board member conferences, bringing the total per member up to $4,000 per year; $125,000 to install security cameras at Granada and Livermore High Schools (one time cost); $200,000 for Maintenance and Operations site improvements; and $162,000 to replace Maintenance and Operations equipment and vehicles (one-time cost).

The trustees agreed that they want to consider spending around $6-800,000 on new expenditures. They will discuss further the possible expenditures at the Sept. 26 Board meeting, but do not anticipate taking action until October or later.

Susan Kinder notes that it could be feasible for the District to pay back its obligations, cover additional personnel costs that result from negotiations, and add the $6-800,000 in new expenditures.

will require renovation to adapt it to the senior day care program. The district board was hopeful that their efforts to secure a permanent site would show the charter school they are really working towards a solution would lead to an extension of the current lease.

In addition, any new location

Board president Scott Kamena said, "People don't understand what it takes to do something like this. The program can't just be moved.

"The worst thing we can do is hold up the charter school and stop its expansion. If we look like we are serious in looking for an alternative space, I think the school board will help us out," stated Kamena.

The LARPD board heard preliminary reports on nine possible locations. Options selected for further study by the LARPD include renovating the Merritt Building on Trevarno Road, which is owned by the district; leasing a commercial space; building a new facility at the Civic Center site; or acquiring a former private school site on Vasco Road.

The board expressed a desire to own the facility to avoid the potential for a future need to move the program.

All of the options will be expensive, between $1.5 and $4 million.

The program would fit in the Merritt Building, However, the estimated costs of renovations is between $1.25 and $1.75 million. What are described as significant structural changes would be needed, including leveling the floors, and opening up the smaller rooms to one area. Concerns were that the site would not be expandable to grow the program from the current license for 30 clients to a license for 48. In addition, the time it would take to finish the modifications exceeds the time frame given to vacate the current location, about 18 months.

District staff is looking at available commercial buildings. One drawback, according to staff, is that a typical commercial site would lack a courtyard or outdoor space.

The former private school 5acre site on Vasco Road would cost $2 million to purchase. Required renovations would require additional funds. The property includes three portable buildings that served as classrooms and offices for the school, a small swimming pool, a 4-bedroom house, a barn and 3.5 to 4 acres of undeveloped land.

The fourth would be to build a new facility on city owned land on the Civic Center site on Pacific Avenue. The cost to build a 10,000 sq. ft. facility is estimated at $3 million.

Board member David Furst said it appeared that the Vasco Road site would be the quickest to get up and running.

Kamena pointed out that the additional acreage could be used for other district programs.

Dale Turner proposed selling the Merritt Building and adjacent house and using the funds to finance a new Friendship Center location.

The board suggested that Pleasanton and Dublin be asked to help fund the program, since it is serving their residents, as well as those from Livermore.

Kamena commented, "Only half of the clients are within the district. It shows this is a unique program, not offered elsewhere. They have to come here.'

Kamena pointed out that if a site were not found, the program would have to be suspended. This led to comments from the public and other board members that if the program were suspended, it would never start up again.

Two board members became emotional when making their comments.

Steve Goodman stated, "This program is the most important district program to me. It makes a difference in people's lives. If it goes away, it won't come back. The people who will lose are not just the clients, but those who volunteer.

"With people living longer, it is even more important. My father had dementia. What I learned at the Friendship Center helped me adjust to what we went through," Goodman said. He suggested that the district ask the Charter School if they would give the park district an extension on the current lease.

Maryalice Faltings declared, "I am not prepared to accept this program will end because we can't find a place to put it. I think the school board owes us. We put a lot of money into the Sonoma facility. Now we are being kicked out through no fault of our own.

"I want to challenge the school district to do what's right. I want to challenge the charter school to do what's right," Faltings stated.

Friendship Center staff member, Annette Cook, pointed out, "The program is more than seniors. Our volunteers are young seniors, children and middle age people. A lot of people come to the center to work with the clients on arts and crafts. They tell stories. They make us laugh. They make us cry. It's a really good place.'

Tauscher Among Those Offering Dissenting View On Military Commission

Rep. Ellen Tauscher, along with fellow Democrats and House Armed Services colleagues Rep. Loretta Sanchez (CA), Rep. Rick Larsen (WA), Rep. Neil Abercrombie (HI), and Rep. Martin Meehan (MA), released an official set of dissenting views regarding legislation to authorize trial by military commission for terrorists.

Their comments included the following:

While we support the effort to establish a system of military commissions as required by the Supreme Court's decision, we are disappointed that the Skelton amendment in the form of a substitute was not adopted by the Armed Services Committee. It offered the best opportunity to quickly create a military commission system that is tough, swift, and fair, and that would produce sustainable convictions of accused terrorists.

thermore, it would put our own troops at risk.

They concluded, "All Americans and all members of the Armed Services Committee want a tough system of military commissions that will swiftly convict terrorists. The Skelton substitute would have created a commissions system that lived up to the requirements of the Supreme Court, protected American troops under the Geneva Conventions, and swiftly moved to convictions for alleged terrorists."

'Our Town' Portrays Timeless Moments

by Janet Armantrout

"Our Town" takes the audience back to the early 20th century. It was a time when people lived in the same town where they were born, got married and expected to be buried.

Pleasanton Playhouse's production of the Thorton Wilder classic opened last Friday at the Studio Theatre. It is a well done play that conveys moments in life that are timeless. Today's audience can still relate to the chaos that occurs between the time when children get out of bed and leave for school.

The play focuses primarily on two neighboring families living in Grover's Corners, New Hampshire. The Gibbs family and the Webbs. There are three acts, each set in a different time: 1901, 1904 and 1913. The play is narrated by stage managers - Tom Reardon, John Brown and Wendy Amador. They also take on the role of various characters in the story. The play is performed on an almost-bare stage. Act 1 presents a day in the life of the town, starting with the sun rising in the east. In the opening act, the stage managers describe the layout of the town with its six churches, the railroad tracks, town hall and jail, and Polish Town. The narration includes what will happen in the future, such as when the first automobile will come to town and who will own it. We learn about the family members, such as the fact that George Gibbs (Bradly Mena) is an up and coming baseball star, while Emily Webb (Morgan Breedveld) is the best student in her school. While the residents are happy, at least one, Mrs. Gibbs (Teresa Reiches-Schacher) expresses the a desire to visit Paris, commenting, "That at one time before you die, you ought to see another country where they don't speak English, and don't even want to." Act 2 focuses on the courtship and marriage of George Gibbs and Emily Webb. It follows the two as they grow up, fall in love and marry. In Act 3, the young couple faces tragedy. Emily comes to realize how precious life is. She asks, "Do any human beings ever realize life while they live it?-

every, every minute? The cast includes Dr. Gibbs (Shawn Bonnington), Mr. Webb, a newspaper editor, (John Maio) and Mrs. Webb (Marsha Howard). They are all likable, capable actors Director Greg Schuh chose the cast well.

Performances continue weekends thorugh October 8 at Stu-dio Theatre, 1048 Serpentine Lane, Suite 309, Pleasanton. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

in 1976, the first year of the Comedy Competition, Robin Williams won second place. The same year, Bob Sarlafte, the onfield master of ceremonies for the San Francisco 49ers at Monster Park, finished third.

The Competition has launched the careers of comedians who have become successful in many entertainment genres outside stand up comedy, especially television. For example, Dana Carvey, 1977 Comedy Champ, went on to Saturday Night Live. Marsha Warfield, winner in 1979, starred as Night

Mystery Writers to Tell How It's Done

A panel of three local mystery writers will discuss their latest novels and the "mystery" of their craft at a September 24 event at the Livermore Library.

The three panelists are Camille Minichino, Margaret Dumas, and Ann Parker.

Minichino has published eight novels in the periodic table mystery series. "The Oxygen Murder" is her latest. Minichino has had a long career in research, teaching and writing. She is cur-rently on the faculty at Golden Gate University in San Francisco, as well as on the staff of Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory. Minichino is president of NorCal Sisters in Crime and on the board of the California Writers Club.

Dumas holds a masters degree in English Literature, which led her into a career as a technical writer and computer software executive. She says she eventually came to her senses and turned her attention to the murderous pleasures of crime writing. Her first novel, "Speak Now," was shortlisted for the 2003 CWA Debut Dagger Award. Her current novel is titled, "How to Succeed at Murder.

Parker earned degrees in physics and English literature from UC Berkeley before falling into a career as a science writer. Her ancestors include a Leadville blacksmith, a Colorado School of Mines professor, and a gandy dancer on the Colorado railroads. Her critically acclaimed, awardwinning historical mystery, "Silver Lies," is set in the silver boomtown of Leadville, CO. "Silver Lies: won the 2004 Willa Literary Award for Best Historical Fiction and the 2002 Colorado Gold Award.

The second in the Silver Rush series, "Iron Ties," received a starred review from Publishers Weekly, which called it "outstanding.'

There is no admission charge. The program begins at 2 p.m. at the library, 1188 So. Livermore, Livermore.

ture. "With the South Livermore Plan, the winery will be there forever."

Jim, a self-described Irish yarn-spinner, said the book is about "Storytelling. The Irish are known for storytelling."

The book includes stories

PET OF THE WEEK: STELLA Stella is a very nice 4-year old blond Cocker Spaniel with a sweet nature and a calm personality. However, she can be a bit nervous and nippy around strangers, and therefore is not suitable for homes with small children. She loves to play ball, and is very affectionate with people she knows. She is housetrained, spayed, and regular grooming will keep her looking cute as a button. For more information on Stella (ID# D-998), call Valley Humane Society at (925) 426-8656. Valley Humane Society holds mobile pet adoptions for dogs and cats at Pet Extreme in Livermore every Saturday from 10:00 am to 2:00 pm.

about the ups and downs of the wine business.

One of the down times was Prohibition. Concannon stayed in business by making sacramental wines.

With the end of Prohibition, Concannon had plenty of wine in tanks ready to go. Jim writes, "Dad put up a circus tent on the lawn out in front of the winery and hired a hundred men to help with the bottling and labeling. There was a line of trucks that stretched halfway into town hauling the wine away taking it to the railroad and shipping it by train all over the country." His dad sent one trainload to Seattle. When it arrived, there was a big celebration, with banners saying, "Welcome Concannon."

Jim tells of taking a bottle of a 1925 vintage to a meeting of the Wine Institute. No one else had an authentic wine from 1925, because it was produced during Prohibition.

The book documents many firsts Concannon contributed to the wine industry. Concannon hired the first woman winemaker in the United Sates, Katherine Vajda in 1950; bottled and labeled the first Petite Sirah, still the winery's signature wine; played a role early in establishing the wine industry in Mexico; and was the first Irish immigrant to create a wine company in the U.S.

Jim says there is yet another first in Concannon's plans. The historic winery will become the nation's first wine museum. Concannon is in the process of building more up to date facilities for the wine making operation.

On Monday, Jim presented a copy of the book to the Livermore Heritage Guild, represented by Gary Drummond.

Drummond said of the book, "This is the first complete vinevard history we have today. I compliment you and the Wine Group for putting it together."

Jim said he decided to write the book, because. "If you wait too long, it's all gone.'

Drummond conducted research for the book, digging through Heritage Guild and Museum on Main archives.

Asked what his favorite story is, Jim said it was when he made his first wine. "I was 8 years old. didn't know what I was doing. The wine fermented and leaked through the ceiling into mom and dad's bedroom. I wasn't punished. Dad just took my hand and said 'let's teach you to make wine the right way.

"The book has been a labor of love," said Jim. "It is for the community.'

The book can be purchased for $49.95 at the Concannon Vineyard tasting room, 4590 Tesla Road, Livermore. For information, call 456-2500 or go website to the at www.concannonvineyard.com.
