

Livermore Set to Market Area to Filmmakers

The Livermore Chamber of Commerce Film Commission is planning a marketing trip to Hollywood to promote this area as the perfect location for filmmakers, from feature films to commercials.

Director Dale Kaye, Livermore Mayor Marshall Kamena, and Alameda County Supervisor Scott Haggerty will lead the team.

A brand new brochure that showcases what's attractive about the Valley will be handed out.

Kaye commented, "The brochure really shows the diversity of locations. It also provides information that this area has the ability to offer a great deal of cooperation. Red tape kills budgets."

There are letters from both Kamena and Haggerty talking about the advan-tages of filming in the area. They also point out that they are willing to work with production crews to make the experience easy.

Haggerty writes, "I know enough about your business to believe that unraveling the red tape is a service that will help to bring your production in on time and on budget. I offer my assistance to help you accomplish this goal in every way.

Kamena notes, "Where else can you find a Hindu Temple, rodeo grounds, vineyards, two national labs and the largest power plant fueled by wind in the world, all within a few miles of each other.

While in the southland, the plan is to host a reception for production heads, the people who decide where a film will be shot. Livermore Valley wines will be served.

Kaye undertook a similar campaign for Jacksonville, Florida and for the State of Florida. She will be using the contacts she developed in Florida to promote Livermore.

Watching movies or commercials being made can be both fun and entertaining for local residents. However, there are greater benefits. Filmmaking provides a huge economic impact. The production crew stays in hotels, eats in local restaurants and hires both local businesses and crew members. "They use almost any kind of business imagin-able," said Kaye. "The ripple effect is tremendous. They spend a lot of money'

The brochure lists a variety of busi-nesses that might be of interest to a filming crew ranging from hardware stores to automotive rentals, janitorial services, payroll services, event planning, and art supplies. Kaye noted that the Jacksonville area benefits to the tune of about $50 million each year from filming in the area. The other aspect of having films made locally is that it is good public relations; it brings in a lot of press. Kaye said that the area has been used as a location primarily for commercials.

"There are five or six location managers who call us constantly. Mainly they are big car commercials and other companies with big budgets, such as IBM and Cisco." The films may be used in-house or aired on television.

One of the more popular locations is the Altamont Pass with its windmills, added Kaye. There is a winding road that cars such as Dodge, Ford and Nissan can be seen driving along in various commercials.

At least one television pilot was filmed by Warner Bros. in Livermore. The location of "Background" was the Springfield Inn. Kaye explained, "Background is another name for extras who want to be actors. The primary concept of the program is that they are willing to play any role from hamburgers to clowns. They don't live in fancy houses like real actors.

The city itself has gotten into the filming business. Last Saturday morning, cameras and production crews were hard at work in downtown Livermore. Kaye in partnership with the City of Livermore's Redevelopment Agency and support from the people at Livermore Downtown Inc., is producing a professional commercial to be aired during the PGA Tour on the Golf Channel. The commercial will tout this area as a tourist destination.

Pleasanton Officials Lobby Feds

Pleasanton Mayor Jennifer Hosterman and Councilmember Cheryl Cook-Kallio were in Washington, DC last week seeking federal funding for several local and regional projects. They had appointments with the offices of Congressmen McNerney and Stark, and Senators Feinstein and Boxer.

Projects include the Alviso Adobe Community Park, Vineyard Avenue improvements, and communication equipment.

"These projects are significant for our community and the Tri-Valley," said Mayor Hosterman. "We communicated our needs directly with our elected officials and their staff so they could better understand how their support can make a tremendous difference.

The two met in person with Congressmen Jerry McNerney and Pete Stark and staff, with Senator Barbara Boxer and her staff, as well as staff from Senator Dianne Feinstein's office, to present a request for Fiscal Year 2008 appropriations.

On behalf of the City of Pleasanton, the delegation requested $625,000 for the Alviso Adobe Community Park Restoration and Interpretation project. When complete, the Alviso Adobe

City Council Gives Greenlight to El Charro Negotiations

The Livermore City Council gave the go-ahead for city staff to negotiate development agreements with property owners within the El Charro Specific Plan area.

The 250 acre area is located east of El Charro Road and west of the Las Positas Golf Course.

The agreements would include responsibility of the prop-erty owners for off-site infrastructure improvements in exchange for guaranteed development conditions. The property owners are Roger Johnson Properties represented by Hybernia Group, Crosswinds Church, El Charro Vista, LLC, and Children's Hospital represented by Terrill Company.

Infrastructure includes, but is not limited to, the extension of Jack London Boulevard to El Charro Road, water, sewer, storm drainage and flood control facilities. The projected cost is $62.5 million.

The property owners would pay for the infrastructure through land secured financing. The development agreements would also include a sales tax incentives program. Under the program, the city would offer sales tax reim-bursement for each property owner. In order to qualify, the parcels must generate $1 million in sales tax revenue each year. The development is anticipated to produce in excess of that amount.

similar incentive program. In this case, tax revenues generated have exceeded predictions. The auto dealers are expected to be able to pay off the infrastructure cost, fronted by the city, before the 20 year deadline. The development agreement would include permitted uses of the property as well as density or intensity of use, maximum height and size of buildings, and duration of the agreement. The council vote was unanimous. There appeared to be a reluctance on the part of the coun-cil to move forward. There was a long pause following Mayor Marshall Kamena's request for a motion.

Councilmember Tom Reitter offered the motion for approval. He commented that the negotiations provide the information that members of the public were looking for with regard to development plans in the area.

Concerns raised by the public include potential violation of the Scenic Corridor ordinance, the sales tax incentive program, impacts on the Livermore Airport and on the Las Positas Golf Course. Resident Kathy Chase said she had no problem with the development along the freeway. It will generate a lot of revenue for the city. Her concern was the extension of Jack London Blvd. She believes it will encroach on the airport's departure area. Her fear was the road would lead to fu-(See EL CHARRO, page 3) the Chevron Pipeline Company. In exchange, Chevron has agreed to pay the park district $800,000.

While any use of the funds is still to be approved by the board, LARPD General Manager Tim Barry stated that we want to use it in the park.

Staples Ranch Plans Focus Of Hearing

A neighborhood meeting will be held on Wed., March 21 to take comments on the develop-ment plans for the 124-acre Staples Ranch

The property is located south of I-580 along the eastern edge of Pleasanton.

The meeting begins at 7 p.m. It will be held in the city council chambers.

The property belongs to Alameda County. The county has an application into the city to approve an agreement that would allow construction of a senior housing facility by Continuing Life Communities and an auto mall by Hendrick Automotive Group.

Hendrick is currently located in Pleasanton on Rose Avenue. However, it wants to move its auto dealerships, including Lexus, Acura, BMW, Mini, Infiniti and Volvo to a new and larger auto mall site. The plan is to develop the 36 acres adjacent to the 580-El Charro interchange.

Livermore is planning a large upscale outlet mall across the road.

Continuing Life Communities wants to build a 690-unit senior care facility on the western edge of the site. The complex would include apartments for independent living, assisted/personal care units and a skilled nursing center with 24-hour nursing care and treatment.

The main issue is the Stoneridge Road extension. Currently, Pleasanton is conducting a study to determine traffic patterns in the city with and without the extension. Residents of

Rep. Jerry McNerney, D-Pleasanton, saw his first piece of legislation pass the House of Representatives on a 368 to 59 vote. Some 138 Republicans joined 230 Democrats in voting for the bill. Two Democrats and four Republicans abstained on the vote, which was held March 8.

The bill is HR 700, the Healthy Communities Water Supply Act of 2007. McNerney's district neighbor, Rep. Ellen Tauscher, D-Alamo, signed on as one of two co-sponsors. McNerney represents the 11th Congressional District, which includes Pleasanton. Tauscher's 10th Congressional District includes Livermore.

Tauscher congratulated McNerney on passage of the bill during a conference call with reporters. "It was a pleasure to work with Jerry to achieve this," said Tauscher. She commented that McNerney's bill was the second written by a freshman legislator that the House passed during this session, which convened in January.

McNerney said that he anticipates passage by the Senate, in light of the overwhelmingly non-partisan vote in the House. The White House Office of Management and Budget is on record as saying that the bill was unnecessary because of other funding sources. However, McNerney said that because of the bipartisan support, he thinks the administration will go for it. "I'm look-ing forward to working with the president on it," he said.

Although other money al-ready is available now under the Clean Water Act, those funds have come to be used for maintenance purposes, said McNerney.

The new bill would be used to aid cities, counties and water districts in developing new sources of water.

McNerney's bill would make $125 million in grants available each year to local agencies. They would have to match the grant on a 50/50 basis. "For a small investment of federal funding, we will be able to spread water resources," said McNerney. Tauscher said that the bill would help such things as water desalinization programs, water recycling, and aquifer storage programs. The EPA would administer the grant program, and judge applications by existing EPA standards.

Asked whether Zone 7 Water Agency, the wholesaler that serves Livermore and Pleasanton, could find funding for such (See BILL, page 3)

Planetarium Brings the Stars Within Reach

Identifying the constellations is no problem for third- and fifthgraders at Smith Elementary. Phase of the moon? Easy, because the students have already seen them up close and in clear focus.

School children all over Livermore are getting to experience the details of the galaxy without ever leaving the classroom, thanks to a new portable digital planetarium. Last week the District held a dedication ceremony and gave some lucky adults a chance to take a tour.

'This is what true education is," said Livermore School Superintendent Brenda Miller. "When you can bring a tool into the schools and generate so much excitement."

The District purchased the planetarium in December and had the first show at Sunset Elementary in January. There was so much interest that the school kept the planetarium open for two nights to allow some 500 children to experience it.

Smith Elementary Science Specialists Jo Lucas and Roya Hosseini have used the planetarium with their third and fifth grade students.

"After using the planetarium, I had children tell me they finally recognized the big dipper in the night sky," said Lucas. "They now tell me what phase the moon is. After viewing it clearly in the planetarium they can recognize the concepts in real life.

Miller first learned about the planetarium when the District borrowed one from San Joaquin County. Everyone agreed it Inman, Green, Summit, Harris, Townsend, Highland, Vista, Mocho, May, Midway, Arroyo Valle, Murray, Tesla, Rosedale, Vallecitos, La Costa, Sheridan do any of those names ring a bell? Once upon a time, they used to ring a school bell, at least. These are the names of one-room schools, each the lone school in a rural school district, that were once scattered across Alameda County. The only two survivors are at opposite ends of the county—Sunol Glen and Mountain House.

The Sunol Glen Elementary School District was established about 1885. Julius L. Weilbye designed a two-story frame structure that was in use a year later in the town of Sunol near the Southern Pacific train depot. A photo in Connie DeGrange's book, A Place Called Sunol, shows about 30 students and a teacher in front of the two-room school at recess. Since 1926 all the students living in five other outlying school districts abandoned by then, have attended here; the Sunol Glen Unified School District covers 84 square miles.

In 1925 Sunol Glen decided to build a new fireproof school on Main Street. Bids went out in July for the building designed by H. W. Weeks. The school, its stucco currently painted a light pink, consists of two main rooms, a classroom and an auditorium with a raised stage and six beautiful old chandeliers. Since 1982 the Sunol Repertory Theater has used the auditorium to perform a yearly melodrama for the school and the town. Another smaller room with a fireplace fronted with blue and brown tiles was planned as a community meeting room. Today, it is the office of superintendent/principal Diane Everett. However, Diane points out that the school itself still serves as a hub for the community, offering a meeting place for organizations, including Scouts and 4-H.

Through the years, smaller outbuildings including a cafeteria and music room were added, and in 2000 a major building project resulted in a quad created by mission-style classrooms, a library, a science lab and a computer room, with the main school building on the south side. Today about 200 students attend kindergarten through eighth grade. The ten classes offered include individual grades plus three combined groupings of first and second grade, second and third grade, and fifth and sixth grade. Class sizes through third grade average 20, and 25 for the chairs for community gatherings. C.C. Ekenberg of Tracy was the architect.

In 2007 Mountain House School has 41 students and three classes: kindergarten through second, third and fourth, and fifth through eighth. The first named classes are in the main building, one in the original classroom and the other in what was the auditorium. The older students' classroom is in a portable at the back of the school. The school district covers about 30 square miles in a ranching/farming area. It, like Sunol Glen, has open enrollment, and about one-fifth of the students are transfers. Dolores Kuhn is the administrative assistant who runs the three-teacher school for Alameda County. She is a former Mountain House School student; her children at-tended the school, and her grand-hildren as well. She was that children as well. She says that this is not an unusual situation. The school web site boasts of this "small school that provides a BIG education." The school also serves as a meeting place for a parents' club and 4H. After graduation from eighth grade, students can choose between attending high schools in Livermore or Tracy.

FOOTHILL, MOHR CELEBRATE CULTURE: Students at Foothill High School in Pleasanton are hosting a week of special activities to celebrate the 18th annual Multicultural Week from March 12 through 16. Activities during the week included a cultural fashion show (pictured) with students displaying traditional clothing from their cultures. Other events include displays and demosntrations of cultures, a cultural food fair, and a schoolwide assembly featuring student performances of a variety of cultural backgrounds.

Mohr Elementary School is also holding its Annual Multicultural/ Heritage Event this week. The theme is "Celebrations." Around the World at Mohr takes place in the Mohr multipurpose room March 15 during school hours. Parent and staff volunteers will have educational booths to demonstrate an important celebration in over twenty countries including China, India, Bangladesh, Korea, Mexico, Brazil, Sweden, Germany, Spain, Zambia, Ghana, The Philippines, Japan, Taiwan, Indonesia, Italy, Ireland, Russia Federation, Turkey, and the USA. On Friday, March 16, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., children from all grades and cultural heritages will perform international dances in "Mohr Celebrates The World" in the multipurpose room. After the performance, volunteers will serve food from around the world.

Sunol Glen has open enrollment, and about 70 per cent of the students are transfers from larger districts, mainly Fremont and Pleasanton. The school web site proclaims "a public school with a private school atmo-sphere." The school district has struggled to maintain its special status. In the 1980s the Pleasanton School District proposed annexation, but with the help of Bill Lockyer and others, Sunol not only kept its own district, but also became a unified school district, which means that some day it may add a high school. After graduation from eighth grade, most students continue their education at a Pleasanton high school.

Mountain House Elementary School District remains closer to its original roots. Class was first held in the Mountain House Inn; proprietor Simon Zimmerman hirêd schoolteacher Isabella White in 1860. Her pay included room and board. A year later, Zimmerman moved an old saloon building from Mohr's Landing and revamped it into a oneroom school about 2 1/2 miles north of his establishment, closer to Byron. A new school was erected in 1873 on property nearby donated by Andrew Haag. In 1924 the current Mountain House School with its stucco exterior was built across the road from Haag's property on Moun-tain House Road. As with Sunol Glen's design, the interior had two rooms: a classroom and an auditorium. The auditorium was equipped with more than 50

Wayne also pointed out that land belonging to the city was purchased using aviation grants. He suggested that the airport should be reimbursed if the land is converted to other uses, such as the road extension.

The tax incentive program was a concern of both John Stein and Don Miller. Miller said there were few details on the program. However, it appeared to be a city subsidy to pay for infrastructure that should be paid for by the developers.

Stein also raised concerns about the impact on the Scenic Corridor. He stated it appears that the architecture was considered more important than the Scenic Corridor. He urged the council to protect the Scenic Corridor.

Another speaker who was concerned about the corridor was Bob Baltzer. "My pet peeve is with the amendment of the gen-McNerney wrote in a press re-lease, "The constant threat of drought in western states along with the reality of global warming emphasizes why the Healthy Communities Water Supply Act of 2007 is so important. We must begin to investigate alternative water sources now, so we can make strides toward ensuring we have the water that we need in the future.

On a separate bill, Tauscher said in a press release that she is glad to vote for passage of HR 720, the reauthorization of the Clean Water State Revolving Fund. The bill authorizes $14 billion over the next four years for the fund. Tauscher was an original co-sponsor of the legislation. In the past eight years, she has been the lead Democratic sponsor of legislation to reauthorize the fund.

A general plan amendment to the Scenic Corridor would be required in order for the church to build on the site.

took control of Congress, said Tauscher. The legislation "clearly promotes the environment, the economy and the health of all Americans." Tauscher stated that she was glad to "have been a part of a Democratic push to finally reauthorize the $14 billion.

The United States "faces a clean water crisis estimated by EPA at $300 billion to $500 billion over the next 20 years. The EPA has warned that failing to overcome this gap will erase the water quality gains made over the past 35 years under the Clean Water Act," Tauscher said.

The revolving fund "provides low-interest loans to local communities for construction of wastewater treatment facilities and other water pollution abatement projects, " said Tauscher.

Created in 1987, it has been the "primary source of federal funding for clean water funding. The fund is enormously popular with state and local governments across the country," she said. Democrats beat back a Republican effort on the floor to eliminate prevailing wage protections for construction projects funded with the money, added Tauscher.

The City's request for the Vineyard Avenue Improvement project was $1,200,000. The improvement is designed to mitigate the impact of increased traf-fic resulting from residential and commercial growth in the Vine-yard corridor. The project in-cludes wider medians, bike lanes, increased landscaping and repav-ing of the street with sound attenuating asphalt. Councilmember Cook-Kallio and city staff represented the city on this project since the Mayor recuses herself from discussions about the Vineyard corridor as her residence is proximate to the proposed improvement area.

Additionally, Hosterman and Cook-Kallio articulated a request for funding support for the East Bay Regional (Interoperable) Radio Communi-Regional cations System. Earlier in 2007, a delegation of elected officials form the Tri-Valley cities – Pleasanton was unable to participate - sought assistance for this project; city officials want to reinforce the importance of creating a two-county network between Alameda and Contra Costa that would enable first responders, public works units and other government units to communicate with one another during critical incidents.

The cost to develop the network is over $60 million; nearly $9 million in federal and state grants has been secured. An ad-ditional $12.5 million has been committed. The remaining $47 million falls to the participating agencies to finance.

"Securing funding for these projects is vital," said Councilmember Cook-Kallio. 'By traveling in person to meet with our elected officials, we were able to have a good discussion about how the funding will make a real difference.

Dyer Road Residents Want Seat At Negotiations

dents has not given up on fighting against the proposed creation of a 62-acre reservoir near their homes. However, they are becoming frustrated with the

The state Department of Wabution

According to the residents, the reservoir would include a 60foot-by-60-foot pumping station made of concrete, a tall, wire fence, and 24-hour lighting, putting adverse light and noise effects on the neighbors' property, especially at night. These would adversely affect their property values.

It is not a Zone 7 project. That agency has not been involved in the issue.

Residents near the site were surprised when work began on the reservoir project in August. Since then, it has been put on hold because of problems with ground sliding, said Lauralee Ragsdale, a resident whose house is near the road.

A month ago, the group hired attorney William Thompson of Livermore. He is a specialist in real estate values. Thompson said that he needs to get up to speed on the case, but he is not having any success in contacting the state about the situation.

General's office have not been returned.

Thompson said he looked at a web site about the case, but did not learn about any new developments. Several calls during two days by the Independent to the attorney general's office in Oakland to learn more about DWR's position were not returned. A call to the DWR official in change of the South Bay Aqueduct project, which would bring water into the reservoir, also was not returned.

According to a web site, the DWR and Waste Management, which owns the site, went to a mediator in December. They are required to report back to the court in late April about progress. Thompson said he would like to represent the residents at those talks. He said that his clients deserve compensation, too, if there is a successful condemnation proceeding. The mediation grew from a condemnation suit filed by DWR against Waste Management. The site is part of land that Waste Management agreed to dedicate in perpetuity as habitat mitigation for species it displaced in expanding the Altamont landfill. The intention was also to use it as a buffer between Dyer Road residents and the landfill.

Although Dyer Road residents don't like the fact that habitat would be taken, and would like to stop that, the taking is permissible in condemnation proceedings, said Thompson. If the Dyer Road residents can't stop the reservoir creation, they would like to be compensated for the future harm they say would come to their property values.

Lauralee Ragsdale's husband Alan, said, "We feel we should be having a voice to discuss (the condemnation)." Waste Manage-ment doesn't have as much at stake in the negotiations as the residents do. The firm (Waste Management) wasn't using the land anyway, and will receive some money for the taking. How-ever, the neighbors think they will see lower property values, and have to put up with the in-trusion as long as they live there.'

The planetarium, a 10- by 16foot dome-shape tent that com-fortably fits 20 adults, is made by Digitalis, a Washington-based company. The magic is contained in a computer connected to a projector that displays images of the night sky across the inside of the dome.

The system runs on Stellarium, an open source planetarium program. Because the software is open source, it is free but also requires a high-level of programming knowledge to use, something the District has access to through the TOPS scientists. The TOPS program places retired scientists and engineers in schools to work in partnership with science teachers. Currently the District has TOPS scientists in 12 of its schools.

Bob Law and Mike Robles, both retired from GE, have devoted countless hours to writing scripts to take teachers and students on specific journeys through the galaxy. There are scripts to examine the phases of the moon, learn about constellations, view distant galaxies, and zoom across our galaxy to view the planets from different perspectives.

Law and Robles, along with other TOPS scientists, are currently working on new scripts aligned to the state content standards. They are also training teachers on using the planetarium.

EDITORIALS Worthy Partnership Undermined

Tri-Valley Haven has decided to end its partnership with the federally funded HOPE (Homeless Outreach for People Empowerment) program, effective April 30, because of the feds' reporting requirements.

Under the partnership, the shelter is required to provide detailed personal information about its clients to a national database designed to track the utilization of services by the homeless. The database, known as the Homeless Management Information Systems (HMIS). is accessible to agencies and individuals. HMIS could jeopardize the confidentiality of victims of domestic violence, sexual abuse and stalking, placing them at risk of being discovered by their abusers, according to Ann King, Haven executive director.

HOPE consists of a mobile clinic that provides medical, mental and social services to the Valley's homeless population. The Haven has partnered with it for five years. It's a "terrific program," Ann King said.

The Haven and other victim services agencies lobbied to be exempted from HMIS. Failing that, the people at the Haven felt they had no alternative but to terminate the partnership with HOPE. "Our commitment to our clients cannot be superseded by anything, not even program funding," said King. The Haven will continue in its work, but poorer without its mobile partner.

We're unable to understand why the feds' won't grant the requested exemption from HMIS. Here seems to be a classic case of red tape limiting access to an enormously worthy service.

Juanita Haugen

Pleasanton education leader Juanita Haugen — who died of cancer at age 69 last week — began her long career as a school board member in 1979, when she was elected to the Amador High board.

The voters elected her to the Pleasanton Unified board when they approved unification in 1988. Haugen continued to serve until her death, actively participating in the board's discussions right up to the end.

Her board colleague Pat Kernan called her "the mother of all school board members.'

Juanita Haugen was a school leader at all levels – local, state and national. She was president of the California School Boards Association in 1997 and was the only school trustee chosen to serve on the National Assessment of Educational Progress during the Clinton Administration. Meanwhile, she never lost sight of the students. "She fought for every kid across the board," Kernan said.

Juanita Haugen spoke and worked for the highest ideals of civic education and public service. She set a high benchmark for school trustees.

I-580 Lobbying Pays Off

An all-out lobbying effort by Valley public officials paid off before the California Transportation Commission (CTC) two weeks ago with the approval of funding for three important projects in the Interstate 580 corridor.

CTC authorized $68 million to complete the Isabel Avenue/State Route 84 interchange on I-580, with groundbreaking in 2008 and completion by the summer of 2009. Also funded were eastbound and westbound carpool lanes, which received $72.2 million and $103 million respectively. This work is to be underway by 2012.

Lobbying for the funding were Livermore Mayor

Iron Horse Trail to Follow Temporary Route

A temporary route to lead people to the Iron Horse Trail was approved last week by the Pleasanton City Council.

The vote was unanimous. The council selected the option supported by staff that uses sidewalks, rather than the route recommended by the Parks and Recreation Commission. The approved temporary route starts at the BART station, goes onto Owens Drive, Stoneridge Drive to Santa Rita Road where it connects to a finished segment of the trail

The commission favored providing access to the arroyo at one point in the route. The route selected has a one time cost of $1500 for signs. The commission route would have required funding to modify trail gates at a cost of $7500 and annual maintenance cost of $2600.

The council preferred to spend any funds available on a permanent route for the Iron Horse Trail.

The council asked that the route they selected not be designated as a trail segment. Signage should indicate where people using the segment could access the finished portions of the trail.

The trail begins in Concord and currently ends at the Dublin-Pleasanton BART station. The proposed route for the Iron House Trail in the city goes from the BART Station through Pleasanton following an old railroad alignment. East Bay Regional Park District has a license agreement with Alameda County to use the alignment as a trail. The City of Pleasanton will partner with the park district.

The segment of the Iron Horse Trail in Pleasanton that has been completed travel between Santa Rita Road and Mohr Avenue. An additional segment between Mohr Avenue and Busch Road is expected to be completed in early 2007.

Jim Townsend of the East Bay Regional Park District related some of the history of the trial that has been expanded from a 600 foot segment to almost 28 miles. The City of Dublin is in the process of redoing a portion of the trail in its city.

One of the issues in building the permanent trail in Pleasanton is mid-block crossings over busy streets. "It is a challenge. However, the issue has been successfully addressed on other portions of the trail," he said.

Townsend pointed out that there is "significant" funding for these types of projects both from the state and federal government. He anticipated completion of a permanent trail was 3 to 7 years out, depending on funding. "However," he declared, "sometimes money falls out of the sky.

Bill Rose, a representative of Valley Spokesmen Bicycle Club, said that the temporary route would not be used by serious bicyclists. They would not ride on sidewalks. He also complained to the council about the lack of bicycle lanes in the city. "Pleasanton is not considered a bicycle friendly town. It is difficult for a cyclists to get through Pleasan-ton," according to Rose.

Councilmember Matt Sullivan, a cyclist, agreed with Rose that serious riders would not use sidewalks. However, the temporary route will be available for walkers and less serious bicyclists. He added that it is important to look at adding bicycle lanes in the city. Other councilmembers agreed with comments about the lack of bicycle lanes. The council directed staff to look at providing more of them.

Jim Wolfe, director of Parks and Community Services, pointed out that the best way to get through the Hacienda Business Park is to use sidewalks on an interim basis.

Cindy Councilmember McGovern stated, "I am totally excited we're moving forward on something. I hope we can move up the seven year completion of a permanent trail.

ACE TRAIN

In another matter related to transportation, resident Jack Dove urge residents to write to Alameda County representatives urging the county to work with the city on the location of a permanent ACE station.

The county and the city have been discussing the potential locations for an ACE station. They include the current station at the fairgrounds and a potential station on the Bernal property. Dove supports retaining the current location.

One of the issues related to an ACE station is the future of the abandoned railroad corridor through downtown Pleasanton. The county has been reluctant to let the city acquire the corridor until the ACE site has become permanent. Pleasanton wants to use the corridor for downtown parking.

Dove asked people to write to Supervisor Scott Haggerty and members of the Pleasanton City Council urging them to come to an agreement, through, "more or better dialog, binding arbitration, or whatever it takes.'

Jury Upholds County Zoning Decision In Christian School Case

An eight-member jury found in favor of Alameda Čounty in a Christian school's suit against alleged religious discrimination in a zoning matter.

The jury's verdict in federal court in San Francisco on March 2 in effect said that the plaintiff, Redwood Christian School, failed to prove that the county discriminated against it, said Rachael Meny, one of two attorneys hired by the county to defend the case.

Redwood Christian School alleged that when the county de-nied it a permit to build 122,000 square feet of buildings on a site south of Interstate 580 near Palomares Canyon Road, it imposed a substantial burden on their religious exercise. The school was referring to verbiage in the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA), which became law in 2000.

Meny and the lead attorney, John Keker, made the argument that the school's application was rejected solely on the basis of having a use that was too intense for the property in a rural area. The record of planning commis-sion meetings showed that the school was unwilling to compromise by reducing the number of students from 650, Meny told the Independent.

The school insisted that it had to have both its senior high school and its middle school together on the same campus, as it has had on its San Lorenzo campus. The school officials said that the older students have a role in teaching the younger students. This was a part of the exercise of religious freedom, said Meny.

An official of the school said that he could not comment on the verdict. Instead he referred a reporter to Derek Gaubatz in the Washington, D.C. office of the Becket Foundation, which argued the case for the school. The foundation specializes in religious liberty cases.

Calls to Gaubatz during two days prior to the Independent's deadline were not returned. In a statement on the foundation's web site, Gaubatz said, "We lost round one, but it's only round one. We will go the distance for this school and its students. We're confident that once Redwood's whole story is heard, we will prevail."

Stony Ridge/Crooked Vine Wineries Have New Owner

Dale Vaughn-Bowen and her father Clyde Vaughn have sold Crooked Vine and Stony Ridge wineries in Livermore to Rick and Pam Corbett.

The Corbetts have run a variety of businesses in Livermore since 1971.

Vaughn-Bowen said she decided to sell the wineries because, "I am very anxious to spend more time with my family, travel, and become a doting grandmother. The six years I have spent running Crooked Vine and Stony Ridge have been very rewarding, but I could not give them the attention they need and still do the other things I want to do with my life.'

I hope that we can do her professional legacy justice when it comes to the quality of her product and the awards Dale has brought home.

Towards that end, the Corbetts will retain Vaughn-Bowen's entire staff and maintain the same hours and policies in the tasting room. Vaughn-Bowen herself will also stay on a part-time basis to establish continuity and help with the special events. "I'll be Vice President of Fun," she joked. The onsite Trio Restaurant will also stay the same.

sponsible for all operations. His 160 acre Del Arroyo Vineyards off Greenville Road have been the primary source for Crooked Vine and Stony Ridge grapes since 2002, an arrangement which will continue. The new ownership plans a general facelift and little else. "We' ll clean up the property, spruce up some of the buildings and maybe add a new structure behind the tasting room," said Corbett

Vaughn-Bowen has had some health problems in recent years, particularly a battle with breast cancer. "The outlook for my health right now is very solid," she said. "Sometimes a cancer scare will force you to readjust priorities, and that kind of thinking was a contributor toward our decision to sell."

The Corbett Family has owned Livermore Travel since 1971 and Del Arroyo Vineyards since 1995. Rick Corbett is also an olive grower and was active in the establishment of the South Livermore Plan in the mid-to-late 1990s. Both families plan to host a "Changing of the Guard" event at the winery on April 22 for Crooked Vine and Stony Ridge wine club members and invited guests

Other planned activities include a cigar and wine weekend on March 31 and April 1, and the annual open house for the gentablishing Crooked Vine and re-habilitating Stony Ridge, and following her will be a tough act.

Marshall Kamena, Alameda County Supervisor Scott Haggerty, State Senator Don Perata, and CTC Commissioner Jim Ghielmetti. It was an impressive statewide campaign.

The Valley corridor of I-580 is rated the second worst freeway bottleneck in the Bay Area. That won't really change until suburban sprawl is curtailed. However, the three projects will bring relief. They are needed. To the coalition of local leaders who made it happen, Good work!

Tauscher Bill Aims at Changing the Course in Iraq

Rep. Ellen Tauscher, along with her colleague Rep. Adam Smith (D-Wash), introduced "The Change the Course in Iraq Act." The bill recognizes that the U.S. military mission in Iraq has changed dramatically from when President Bush first sought Congressional authorization. As such, it terminates the existing authority on the use of force in Iraq. It requires the Secretary of Defense to submit a plan for phased redeployment of U.S. forces. Furthermore, it requires the President to appoint a highlevel Coordinator for Iraq Stabilization to step up regional co-operation in the stability efforts.

The bill forces the Iraqi government to take on a greater role in stabilizing Iraq. It conditions further funding for Iraqi security and reconstruction, beginning in 2008, on the President certifying that the Iraqis have met specific benchmarks recommended by the Iraq Study Group.

"Almost five years ago we authorized the President to use force in Iraq for a myriad of reasons many of which are outdated or have been proven to be pa-tently false," said Rep. Ellen Tauscher. "American Troops were not sent to Iraq to fight a civil war. They must be brought home sooner and safer.'

which meets the goal of installing a pipeline deep into the ground but does not disturb the surface or roots along the pipeline route.

Preserving the unique natural landscape at Sycamore Grove Park was a priority for the Board. In addition to demanding that the least invasive of the current drilling methods be used, the pact includes a broad range of environmental protections that also address Chevron's liability," according to Barry.

Chevron had considered digging a trench to put in the pipeline. However, when the park district raised concerns about the impact on the park, Chevron came up with a different method that involves drilling and then pulling the pipe through the tun-

Air District Cancels Site 300 Open Air Explosion Permit

Permits that would have allowed the Livermore Livermore National Laboratory to increase its open air explosions at Site 300 annually by 8-fold have been cancelled by the San Joaquin Air Pollution Control District.

Citizens and groups chal-lenging the permit received the news by phone from the air district; no formal statement has yet been released.

The permits that were revoked mark the first attempts by Livermore Lab to obtain county permission for open-air detonations at Site 300. The Air Pollution Control District has only been in existence for 15 years. During this time, Site 300 openair explosions were conducted without permits because the blasts were at a lesser volume and yield. Livermore Lab is also and yield. Elvermore Lab is also applying to the Calif. State Dept. of Toxics to increase Site 300's waste storage from 3,300 gallons to 5,500 gallons. Site 300, Livermore Lab's high explosive testing range, was granted permits in November 2006 to detonate up to 8,000

Pleasanton Council Meetings To Be Aired on the Web

Future Pleasanton City Council meetings will be webcast on City's website at the www.ci.pleasanton.ca.us

The Council meetings can be viewed in real time as they take place and will then the available for post-meeting viewing begin-ning the following day. Pleasan-ton City Council meetings are held on the first and third Tuesday of each month at 7:00 pm in thể City Council Chamber at 200 Old Bernal Avenue.

"This technology provides broader public access to our meet-ings and will help keep our citizens informed," said Pleasanton City Manager Nelson Fialho. "The Internet is becoming a highly effective way to reach our residents and gives them the opportunity to access the information they want, when they want it.

Users can access the live pounds of high explosives annu-ally and 350 pounds daily. Ac-cording to activists, the Lab's permit application was silent about the exact contents of the explosions. Site 300 covers 11 square miles, and is located on Corral Hollow Road, just off I-580 in the Altamont Hills between Livermore and Tracy. Local businesses and community members demanded that the air district conduct public hearings, disclose more information about the blasts, and look carefully at the health and environmental impacts that could result from the explosions. Tracy business owner Bob Sarvey formally appealed the permits. The district notified the parties last Wednesday that the Lab would have to reapply if it wanted to obtain permits for these large explosions. "I filed the appeal because I could see the Livermore Lab wanted to fast track these permits without informing the community about the risks involved in the project," said Bob Sarvey, a longtime Tracy resident and business owner. Sarvey and his family live on Corral Hollow Road. "The big winner today is the environment in and around Site 300," declared Tri-Valley CAREs' Staff Attorney, Loulena Miles. "I am gratified that the air district heeded our plea.

Site 300 is on the federal Environmental Protection Agency's 'Superfund" list of most contaminated locations in the country.

Site 300 is also on Homeland Security's "short list" of sites being considered to host a bio-lab, known as the National Bio and Agro Defense Facility, where bioweapon agents will be stud-ied on animals in a maximum containment laboratory the size of 5 Wal-Mart stores. In the coming months, Homeland Security will decide whether to study the Tracy site as one of the "finalist" candidates for the massive biolab

Unique Business Park Gains Council Approval

A unique complex of small office buildings was approved by the Livermore City Council on Monday.

The vote was unanimous. Lorraine Dietrich was absent.

Mayor Marshall Kamena stated, "I'm very impressed with the proposal. I think it will be a positive addition to the city."

What makes the project unique is that it caters to small businesses. The 23.14 acre site just off of North Canyons Parkway, opposite Costco, features 16 lots developed into one-story and two-story office buildings. Rather than leasing, businesses will be able to purchase the individual lots.

Mike Parker, owner of the developer ExTerra Realty Partners, LLC, pointed out that the local demand for office space is driven by small business owners. "The ability for these businesses to purchase the site is not offered anywhere else in Northern California." Parker said that the model has worked well in South-ern California.

The project complies with Scenic Corridor requirements. In addition, providing smaller lots has reduced the amount of grading required. The buildings are stepped down and serve as re-taining walls. Parker com-mented, "This allows the buildings to blend more naturally into the surroundings.

In the center of the site, there will be a courtyard containing two bocce ball courts, a fountain, and benches.

Councilmember Tom Reitter stated, "It's nice to have a project where the hills are actually higher than the buildings.

OTHERACTIONS

The council approved raises for both the city manager and city attorney.

City Manager Linda Barton's base salary will go from $196,253 to $208,028 per year, a 6 percent increase. In addition, she will receive an increase in her automobile allowance from $400 to $500 per month. Barton uses her own car for city business. This is the first adjustment in the car allowance since Barton began working for the city in 2001. Barton also received a special merit pay award of $9812 based on her performance review. The city council recently reviewed Barton's performance and noted areas in which the city manager met the criteria for a special merit pay award. These include: continuing downtown revitalization, developing the El Charro Specific Plan and regional shop-ping opportunities, preserving open space in North Livermore, developing a long term infrastructure maintenance and rehabilitation strategy, and continuing neighborhood preservation activities.

City Attorney John Pomidor also received a pay increase and special merit pay award. Pomidor received a 7 percent pay increase going from $168,489 to $180,283 per year. His special merit pay award was $6739.

Junction Avenue Middle School staff, celebrated the life of a teacher, Janet Montes, who died in August 2006. The celebration took place on Friday, March 9th, her birthday. At her funeral one of the teachers remembered her by wearing a boa that Janet had given her. Janet had told her that every woman should have a boa. Friday, March 9th, was officially declared Janet Montes Memorial Boa Day. Math teacher Linda Brown and other staff members came to school wearing boas in her honor.

Birds Program

All About Birds is the topic of a Sun., March 18 program presented by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD) ranger staff. Meet Ranger Patti Cole at 9 a.m. at the Watmore Read entrance to Sy-the Wetmore Road entrance to Sy camore Grove Park. The program will begin with a "sit spot" exercise designed to gain new insights into bird behavior. Then participants will hit the trail, exploring various habitats attractive to a variety of bird species. Cancelled if raining. Advanced reserva-tions required by calling (925)960-2400. This program will last approximately 2 hours. There is a $3 per vehicle parking fee. A $2 donation is requested to help support the programs.

Science Bowl

Las Positas College (LPC) is hosting the second annual regional Middle School Science Bowl competition. The science bowl is a great way to generate enthusiasm for science in young people. On Saturday, March 17, some 20 middle school teams will converge on the Livermore campus to answer ques-tions such as, "Laser is an acronym for what?" (Answer: Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation.) This event is one of 2 regional competitions in the Bay Area.

Participating teams hail from Fallon Middle School (Dublin); Quarry Lane (Dublin); Livermore Valley Charter School (Livermore); Queen of All Saints (Concord); Emerson Jr. High (Davis); William Hopkins Jr. High (Fremont); Hercules Middle School (Hercules); Challenger (Newark); Canterbury School (Richmond); Chinese Christian Schools (San Leandro); Franklin Middle School (Vallejo); and Doris-Eaton (Walnut Creek).

Students and coaches will spend the morning in round robin elimination matches, with final rounds leading to a grapes and wines are produced by ivermore Valley Wine Growers and Vintners. The next Quest for Excellence seminar will be held on Thursday, March 22nd from 5:30 to 7:30 pm at the Robert Livermore Community Center, located at 4444 East Avenue in Liver-more. The featured speaker is Roy Thornton – CSU Fresno, speaking on the topic of "Wine Yeasts genetics, physiology, and breeding," Thornton holds a Ph.D. in Applied Microbiology; he taught for more than 20 years, and was a Senior Research Microbiologist with E & J Gallo Winery.

The session will have a fee of $10.00 to help cover the cost of materials. Please RSVP by March 19th to the Livermore Valley Wine Growers Asso-ciation at (925) 447-WINE (9463).

DECA Students Winners

Thirty students from Livermore High School traveled to Orange County for the DECA State Career Develop-ment Conference. Students competed in any of thirty business career related areas, with nearly a thousand in atten-

OBITUARIES Thomas Elton Kane

Services were held in Santa Cruz on March 10, 2007, for Thomas Elton Kane who passed away peacefully at his Santa Cruz home on March 3, 2007 at the age of 59 following a short battle with cancer. His beloved family was at his bedside. Mr. Kane was born in Mississippi. He served his country as a sergeant in US Air Force during the Viet Nam War, earning rifle marksmanship decorations.

Kane was an electrical engineer with special emphasis in microwave hardware. His career spanned over 40 years as an engineer. He earned recognition in "Who's Who, had numerous published papers, and holds numerous patents for his inventions in the semiconductor and microwave field.

An avid runner, he received many awards at Blackford High school including state and local competitions. He will be forever remembered, and missed, for his dedication to his children and all of their athletic and performing activities.

He is survived by his five loving children, Lei-Lani Mae Kane Haynes of Scotts Valley, Elaina J-Nell Kane of Sacramento, Oliver Michael-Thomas Kane of Livermore, Kaleena Louise France- Kane of Yankton, South Dakota, Kalen Georgedean-Ross Kane of Soquel, and his wife of 35 years, Cathy Kane of Santa Cruz. #### Rev. John J. Dollard

Rev. John J. Dollard went home to be with the Lord on March 5, 2007 in Livermore. He was born January 1, 1919 in San Mateo.

He was the son of the late John J. Dollard of County Kilkenny, Ireland and Marjorie McGinley, County Donegal, Ireland. He was ordained a Catholic priest June 16, 1945 at St. Mary's Cathedral, San Francisco. He was the founder and first pastor of St. Charles Borromeo in Livermore. In the early days of St. Charles, while waiting for a church building, Fr. Dollard said Mass at Granada High School and the Vine Theater. He was often in his parishioners' homes, saying Mass and sharing a meal, because he believed the laity was the church. After he retired, he was still actively teaching. He loved to travel and play golf. He loved Livermore and lived here for nearly 45 years. He is survived by his brother and sister-in-law, Patrick and Marian Dollard, a nephew, Eric Dollard, a niece and her husband Dave and Susann Penry, and a great nephew, Daniel Penry. His sister Mary Florentia B.V.M. preceded him in death. He also leaves behind many friends, who will miss him greatly. In honor of Fr. Dollard's request, there will be no services. He will be interned in St. Michael's Cemetery in Livermore. In lieu of flowers, please make donations to Hope Hospice, 6500 Dublin Blvd., Suite 100, Dublin, CA 94568.

SPORTS NOTES

Pleasanton Seahawk Hailey DeGolia set a new American Record as a member of the University of Arizona 200 Medley Relay at the NCAA Championships last week. Her 50 Back time of 24.2 helped set the record. In addition, she placed 7th in the 200 IM (1:58.30), 6th in the 100 Fly (52.60), and 2nd in the 100 Back (52.66).

Under-16s Advance

The Pleasanton Ballistic United Black under-16 boys Al Caffodio soccer team advanced to the round of 16 of Association Cup play by going 2-0-1 in pool play over the weekend at Sacramento.

Great team defense played through out the pool play led by Phil Vieback, Patrick Yee, Austin Richwood, Eric Burnett. Only one goal was allowed. Goal keeper Stephen LaCommare was solid through out the pool play. Strong midfield play led by Jered Lui, Brandon Lee, John Leach, Mason Ridgeway, Edmond Hare, Noel Moldvai, and Nayam Karavadra helped to control the midfield for most of the games. Ballistic defeated the Santa Rosa NW

Oaks Clash 2-0 on Saturday. Chris Lee started the scoring with nice shot down the middle and past the goal keeper. Nathan Roberts rounded out the scoring off a cross by Lui, 16 yards out from the left side. Sacramento OLG Atlas White lost to Ballistic on Sunday morning 2.0. Roberts

Ballistic on Sunday morning, 2-0. Roberts scored with a feed from Julio Gomez in the first half. Justin Dorsey punched in and scored from the left side of the goal off the shot by Nayam Karavadra, after a fine pass by Lee. Ballistics tied the Mt. Diablo Diablos on Sunday afternoon, 1-1. A hard fought game. Mason Ridgway tied the scoring from with a free kick, 20 yards out in the first half.

Foothill Freshman

Foothill High School Falcons freshman team took on Berkeley. On the mound Sean Mannion and Michael Slifer scattered six hits over 7 innings for the 3 – 2 win. Will Anderson and Sean Mannion led the offense, both going 2-3 at the plate. Anderson con-nected for a triple and single, and scored two runs while Mannion delivered with a double and single and two RBIs and single and two RBIs. Austin Mann slapped a single and scored the 3rd run when Elias Khoury hit a single to right in the 5th inning. Defense also keyed a key role in the win. In the 2nd inning catcher Andrew Brazil took on charging Berkeley runner trying to steal from 3rd for an out at the plate. Then in the 4th inning second baseman Matt Owen charged a soft grounder throwing to Brazil at the plate taking away what would have been a sure run, and in the top of the 7th Brandon DeFazio fielded a tricky hop at deep short followed by a strong throw to 1st to get the last out of the game with runners on 2nd and 3rd.

The Foothill Freshman squad improved their record to 3 – 0.

Dons Win Two

The Amador Valley High Lady Dons JV Softball Team came away with another victory beating the Liberty Lions. In a decisive win at home, Amador Valley walked away with a 12-0 victory as the "ten run rule" was put into play. Haley Douglas, Jessica Pipitone and Janine Kalepp all had hits in the first inning, bringing in five runs, and setting the course bringing in rive runs, and setting the course for the rest of the game. Two more runs were scored in the second inning with hits by Emma McGuiness, Haley Douglas, and Carli Kachel's RBI. Rayna McMullen showed some great base running reaching first on a dropped third strike.

This coring continued in the third in-ning. Beth Aselage got on base laying down a great bunt, and Rayna McMullen's three RBI double to the outfield, scored all three runs for the inning. In the fourth inning the Lady Dons scored two more runs, with help from McGuiness' sacrifice fly RBI. We saw from McGuiness' sacrifice fly RBI. We saw some great defensive plays in the fifth to keep the Liberty team scoreless, including Jessica Pipitone's (playing shortstop) great catch and throw to first. The game ended in the fifth with the Mercy Rule. Macy Masijlo's pitching proved to be too much for Liberty. She pitched a shutout with 10 strikeouts and no walks. Macy's fine pitching, and some solid defensive plays by the team, allowed for only 4 hits by the Liberty Lions. The Amador Valley High Lady Dons.JV

The Amador Valley High Lady Dons JV Softball Team next traveled to Dublin on Thursday to take on the Gaels on their home field. The Dons defeated them without much difficulty by the score of 13-3. The Lady Dons quickly got on the scoreboard in the first inning against the Dublin Gaels as Macy Masajlo hit a double and was promptly batted in by Carli Kachel who followed with a double of her own. Emma McGuiness drove Kachel in with an RBI single. Amador Valley never looked back after the first inning as the offense was solid through out the game. Kachel finished the day with two doubles and three runs batted in. Rayna McMullen also added two RBI's. Masajlo and McGuiness also chipped in with two runs batted in of their own. Masajlo finished the day with two other base hits and two RBI's while McGuiness added a double later in the game Amanda Sisneros (single and one RBI) Jessica Pipitone (two singles and a RBI), Shelby Barraza, and Haley Douglas (two singles) also joined the hit parade. Nicole Sisneros reached first on a fielder's choice while Beth Aselage had a sacrifice hit to help the cause by driving in a run. Douglas pitched six innings (ten run rule invoked after the bottom of the sixth inning) striking out 12 batters, walking two, and allowing one hit while giving up three unearned runs.

'Copenhagen' Performance in Danville

by Sue Steinberg

Crackling dialogue and rapid-fire volleys of ideas, sci-entific facts and theories, personal attacks and rebuttals are electrifying audiences in Dan-ville Role-Players' production of Michael Frayn's "Copenhagen."

Based on the controversial meeting of physicists Niels Bohr and Werner Heisenberg in 1943, the play shows the reversal of their original master and acolyte roles: Bohr is living in Denmark under German occupation and endangered by his Jewish blood, while Heisenberg has emerged as the ranking scientist of Hitler's Nazi regime.

Their encounter is actually a series of different retellings of that meeting, filtered through old memories and re-constructions, in an attempt to answer questions that still haunt their

By Sue Steinberg

First, a confession: I'm a Gilbert and Sullivan snob. To paraphrase their comic character Poo-Bah, "I can't help it! I was born sneering..." (at pedestrian G and S productions).

But producer Kathleen Breedweld's sparkling version of "The Mikado" for Livermore Valley Opera (LVO) won me over completely. At the finale I was on my feet, cheering along with the rest of the enthusiastic opening night audience.

It all began with Maestro Alexander Katsman's skillful conducting of the Overture, which highlights so many favorite melodies from sentimental to sprightly. The magic took hold as the curtains parted on Jean-Francois Revon's dreamy old fairy-tale Japan set.

Framed by blossoming trees in romantic pink and rose, (courtesy of Scenic Designer Heike Seefeldt), a perfect oriental central arch opened to the far horizon, revealing a small distant temple. That semicircle of sky provided a highly-effective backdrop for changing moods and dramatic tableaux as subtly illuminated by Lighting Designer Carol Hovey.

Another strong element of the production's perfection was the exquisite costuming, coordinated by Marianna Ford. Muted pastels in authentic fabric designs provided the loveliest visual ensembles in LVO history, with professionally-crafted Japanese period wigs and headdresses literally adding the crowning touch! Once the singing began, the clearly-articulated opening chorus was a tribute to conductor Katzman's success as a vocal coach. It is never easy to render W. S. Gilberts witty and intricate chorus lyrics so intelligibly.

Moving a chorus smoothly within a limited area presents a great staging challenge, but artistic Director Steve Shearer accomplished miracles in that regard. Especially impressive was the coordination of frequent bows and fan flourishes, so unnatural to American singers, and often poorly rehearsed and executed.

Above all, "The Mikado" demands exceptional singing, acting, AND mugging from all of its many principals. Each character has a very specific personality that must come across to the audience. A tall order for any company, but one accomplished admirably by LVO's cast.

Jonathan Smucker as romantic lead Nanki-Poo, disguised Crown Prince of Japan, was a rare find. A young man whose pale slim face radiated romantic longing and puppy-dog earnestness from his first entrance, he possesses a ringing sweet lyric tenor perfectly suited to his ardent melodies. At the same time, he can achieve the slightly sappy expressions of most love-addled G and S heroes.

His heroine, the aptly adorable Yum-Yum, sung by LVO Kirsta Wigle, showed her spunk as a winsome schoolgirl about to be married to her doltish guardian Ko-Ko, but madly in love with Nanki-Poo. Her generous warm soprano filled the hall and earned prolong accolades, especially after her Act II solo.

Another highlight was the famous trio "Three Little Maids from School," sung with her two high spirited sisters, the comically-named Pitti-Sing (Amy Bouchard) and Peep-Bo (Hannah Nicole Bochenek). Their lovely harmony combined with shy stage business also won wild audience approval.

All the male principals were superbly matched to their characters in vocal and acting ability. The silly-titled Pish-Tush neatly embodies the fussy petty bureaucrat anxious to offend no one as he relates the remarkable story of Ko-Ko's elevation from "cheap tailor" to the exalted rank of Lord High Executioner.

That comical protagonist is wonderfully realized by Robert Sholty, with chuckle-provoking bluff and bluster, and a rich baritone delivery of some of the show's funniest songs. His famous "I've Got a Little List" describes public nuisances "whose loss would be a distinct gain to society," including such timely topical additions as "steroidal athletes", "shameless paparazzi", and politicians with "compromising morals" – much to the audience's delight.

Chief nobleman and stage zany is Pooh-Bah, whose very title captures his haughty nature, as does his imposing physical stature and over-the-top costume. Resembling a rubber-faced Jonathan Winters, Michael Strelo-Smith mugs, minces, and makes the most of all his delicious lines. A personal favorite is the explanation for his enormous family pride: "I can trace my ancestry back to a protoplasmal primordial atomic globule" of "pre-Adamite ancestry"

Adamite ancestry." Huffing that he is not in the habit of saying 'Howdeedo' to anybody under the rank of stockbroker," he lists all the great officers of state whose jobs (and salaries) he has absorbed, from Lord of the Treasury, Chief Justice, and Commander-in-Chief to the Archbishop of Titti-Pu, Groom of the Back Stairs, and Master of the Buckhounds. Plus a few timely titles inserted for laughs, such as Secretary of Homeland Security and "Keeper of the Colonel's Seven Secret Spices.

sesses a ringing sweet lyric tenor perfectly suited to his ardent No G and S show would be complete without an ample contralto spinster pining for a hopeless love, the butt of many rude jokes. In "Mikado," the formidable femme is Katisha, an elderly court lady trying to trap Nanki-Poo into marriage. She enters the scene like the Wicked Witch of the West, garish in red and black satin brandishing long curved red fingernail claws at the terrified villagers, and demanding her "prey," masquerading in Titipu as a second trombone.

Screeching like a evil harridan Shauna Shoptaw throws herself into the role's histrionics with great gusto. To compensate for all the mockery she must endure, she later sings two of the show's most hauntingly plaintive ballads, lamenting her miserable loneliness with affecting tenderness.

The final character – the Mikado himself – is played as a kind of buffoonish deus-ex-machina by Paul Sinasohn. Another unique LVO find, he is a big man made even more massive by his costume, imposing head-dress, and enormously authoritative fan. (Kudos for learning to handle it!) Using his wonderfully mobile features to maximum comic effect, he threw his magnificent basso into the recital of fiendish punishments he's created for society's sinners.

Whole families could be heard laughing at his proposed sentencing of rebellious teenagers, to be "yanked from the mall to sit in the hall with nothing to do." Another crowd-pleaser was his smug summary of life's injustices: "Virtue is triumphant only in theatrical productions."

And, despite the complicated "How-dee-doos" of the plot, this IS a theatrical production, so virtue is happily triumphant. Nanki-Poo finally marries Yum-Yum and reclaims his rank as Heir Apparent, while the hapless KoKo is paired off with Katisha (despite her confession of being "just a teensy weensy bit bloodthirsty.")

As the Mikado grandly proclaims in his own muddled way, "Nothing could possibly be more satisfactory," a very good description of LVO's triumphant realization of this endearing classic.

Its popularity has already attracted near-sellout shows, so anyone still without a reservation should call the Box Office at 925-960-9210 or visit the website at www.livermorevalleyopera.com immediately. The two final performances will be held Saturday, March 17 at 8 PM and Sunday March 18, at 2 PM at the Livermore High School Theater, cor-ner of East Avenue and Maple Street. Dr. Philip Manwell, the noted music performer and pro-fessor, will offer an introductory lecture one hour before each performance.

'art' Celebrates Art of Friendship

Shakespeare's Associates, Inc., opens it inaugural season at the newly created "West End Theater" at the Bothwell Arts Center Friday, March 23rd.

Yasmina Reza's comedy "art," winner of the Evening Standard Award, Olivier Award, and Tony Award, celebrates the art of friendship and, in Livermore, the spirit of collaboration.

The six-performance run will be accompanied by a juried visual art exhibit entitled "Is that art? An Exhibition" hosted by the Livermore Valley Performing Arts Center. In addition, a collaboration with the winemakers at Blacksmith Square, Retzlaff Winery and John Christopher Cellars, will bring together winemaking artists and theater artists for a gathering with audience members after the Sunday matinee on March 25th.

"Art is a dialogue," says artistic director Lisa A. Tromovitch. "Getting wine makers, visual artists, actors and designers together with audience members to share a series of artistic experiences, and then creating an opportunity to talk together about it – that's what art should do for a community. It should bring us together, even to share opposing opinions on the definition of art. I expect a lively dialogue. Of course the show is an amazing comedy, but not everyone will be willing to laugh off an expensive all-white painting." Shakespeare Festival at Retzlaff Winery.

'art' plays at the Bothwell Arts Center located at 8th and G Streets in Livermore. Performances will be March 23, 24, 25, 30, 31 and April 1, Fridays and Saturdays at 8:00 p.m. and Sundays at 2:00 p.m. Ticket prices are $25 general admission, $20 for seniors 65 and over, full- time teachers, and military ID, and $15 for students 18 and under. Tickets are available on the web www.ShakespearesAssociates.org or by calling 1-800-838-3006. The house will open 30 minutes prior to the performance to enjoy concessions and the art exhibit. All audience members attending first weekend performances will be invited to a complimentary wine tasting at Blacksmith Square on Sunday, March 25th.

Wildlife Paintings Featured in Show

Film Looks at Homeless War Veterans

Las Positas College's Journalism Club will screen a documentary about homeless war veterans called "When I Came Home." The film will be shown on March 19 at 6:30 p.m. After the film a panel will discuss the film and this increasingly prevalent problem.

The film highlights challenges veterans face upon return to the U.S., including mental illness, alcoholism, drug abuse, homelessness, no benefits from Veteran's Affairs, no health insurance, and the inability to obtain/ maintain employment as they attempt to reintegrate into mainstream society.

The film points out that problems veterans face, in turn, affect society by way of more homeless people on the streets.

Along with discussion of the film, the panel will address how we as a society can help rectify the situation. What can be done locally? Nationally? At the government level? How can we make sure soldiers receive the necessary support upon return to the states? There will be a question and answer portion for the audience as well. For more information, contact Journalism Club President Andre Kim at 925-424-1240.

For its 9th annual musical pro-duction, Christensen Middle School chose a thoroughly modern show, "High School Musical!" The show, which is based on the Disney Channel's movie of the same name, was just released as a stage version last year.

We chose this show for its upbeat and positive message, that you can be anything you want, and there is no need to fit in to only one slot," says Rhonda Burrell, a Christensen parent and the show's producer. "The show's music and the popularity with the younger crowd also was a fac-

The story of "High School Musical!" is reminiscent of another popular musical set in high school: "Grease." While on vacation, Troy, a jock, and brainy Gabriella meet at a karaoke contest. Inspired by their vacation performance, both Troy and Gabriella decide to audition for the school musical.

Everyone, it seems, wants to prevent Troy and Gabriella from following through on their plans. Their friends are against it and the ruling school drama stars, Sharpay and Ryan, have made it clear that everyone had better stay out of their way.

The cast of the show are fans of the Disney movie, and this makes the performance all the more fun. At a preview show at Altamont Creek Elementary School, nearly all the students in the audience said they'd seen the movie at least once.

"I've seen the Disney version, so it was really cool to try out for these roles," says Brinda Dixit, who plays the role of Sharpay. "I love playing a villain." Playing Sharpay's rival Gabriella Montez is Kelly Madden, one of Dixit's close friends in real life. The two say it was sometimes hard being so mean to each other in rehearsals.

"It's so great to portray some-one you are not," says Tyler Campbell who plays another villain, Ryan. "I love stepping into this role.'

For the students playing the thespians, the challenge was singing badly and dressing tacky to fulfill their roles.

"In the show we sing badly and it is really funny, but it's also embarrassing at the same time," says Jessica Hallum, who plays the role of Cathy. "We're the over-the-top drama girls and we have to act like we think we are the best."

Show dates are March 23, 24, 30, and 31 at 7 p.m. at the Liver-more High School Performing Arts Theatre. Tickets are $7 for orchestra level and $5 for balcony level and are available at Country Charm (1601 Railroad Ave.) or by calling Kathy Pehrson at 925-443-1931. Tickets may be available at the door 30 minutes prior to the show.

sixth, seventh, and eighth graders. The production is organized and run by the Parent-Teacher Association and about 40 parent volunteers. CMS alumni Ñicole Madera, Jenna Heise, and Danielle Hubbard, all former cast members, have also returned to help. For the first time the show has a professional director, Dawn Monique Williams. She holds an M.A. în drama from San Francisco State University and a B.A. in theatre arts from California State University East Bay (CSUEB).

Burrell found Williams through CSUEB's drama department. This is Williams' first time directing middle school students; she typically works with professional and aspiring adult actors.

Adding another professional touch is choreographer Tasha Trujillo, who is a 49ers cheerleader and host of the KRON TV Show "Latin Eyes." Trujillo came to the show through a personal friendship with co-director Julia Meredith, a Christensen parent. The cast of High School Musical! is:

The Jocks: Austin Andrade (Troy Bolton), Christopher Messenger (Chad Danforth), Gabriel Pasillas (Zeke Baylor), Steven McCloud (Jason), and Wesley Ostrowski (other jock).

The Thespians: Brinda Dixit (Sharpay Evans), Tyler Campbell (Ryan Evans), Arianna Barr (Jamie), Colleen Madden (Susan ), Jessica Hallum (Cathy), Katie Pehrson (Amanda), Emily Perry (Cyndra ), Samantha Cushman and Stacy Amador (Performance Art Kids).

The Brainiacs: Kelly Madden (Gabriella Montez), Lauren Ballou (Taylor McKessie), Zoe Tranter (Martha Cox), Jacqui Frazer, Megan Combs, Annette Ramos, Rachel Pegler, and Tricia Bowles (Kratnoff).

The Skaters: Sammy DeSilva (Ripper), Kelyn Hauk (Mongo), Michaela Molina and Brittney Martinez (Other Skater Girls).

Other Students: Breonna Burrell (Kelsi Neilson), Jennifer Meredith (Jackie Scott).

Cheerleaders: Wildcat Ashlynn Brown, Stella Messenger, Kyleigh Self, Brittany Machado, Martha Quinonez, Courtney Lemmon, Araina Hanson, Evelyn Garcia, Briana Herrera, and Crystal Combs.

The Adults: Jessica Hallum (Karaoke MC), Debbie Hallett (Ms. Darbus), Steven McCloud (Coach Bolton), Stella Messenger (Ms. Tenny), Courtney Lemmon (Moderator).

Wall of Hope at Livermore Post Office

The northern California portion of the Wall of Hope, an exhibit of the Wall of Hope Breast Cancer Survivors' Project®, will be at the U. S. Postal Service, at 220 South Livermore Avenue, Livermore, on Friday, March 16, 8:45 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and Satur-day, March 17, 2007, 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

"We are excited to be partnering with the Wall of Hope breast cancer organization to help raise funds for this terrible disease. The exhibit will also serve to inspire and educate our customers," says Livermore Post-master Jerry Phillips.

In concert with the event, the U. S. Postal Service will feature its Breast Cancer Research Stamp, a 45-cent, first-class postage stamp that raises funds for breast cancer research. Pink silk roses and handmade crystal ribbons and other boutique items, will be offered for donations by the Wall of Hope. Volunteer hostesses will greet the public at the exhibit, hand out information about cancer, cancer and environmental toxins, and share cancer experi-ences with the public. The founder and president of the Project, Marilyn Axelrod Burch, will be amongst the volunteers on-site for the two-day event.

'We look forward to showing the Wall of Hope in Livermore

PET OF THE WEEK

My name is Dawn. I'm a 2-3 year old Australian Cattledog mix. My "safe" life began on January 7 when VHS picked me up from a shelter with my 8 puppies and put us in a wonderful foster home. As of March 3, all my pups found new homes and now I'm looking for my own place too. I am cautious of new people and don't know many worldly ways, but I'm very loving once I get to know you. I was a wonderful mom, I am interested in things, and TV is something else. I do dearly love my foster parents and know someone out there is just as nice as they have been. Valley Humane Society holds mobile pet adoptions for dogs and cats at Pet Extreme in Livermore every Saturday from 10:00 am to 2:00 pm.

for the first time, and we are committed to educating and supporting the community in regards to environmental toxins and cancer," says Ms. Burch. The Wall of Hope will also have tickets available at the post office for the screening on Friday night, March 23, of Al Gore's movie, "An Inconvenient Truth." The screening will be held in Danville at a private residence. A donation of $20 a ticket is asked to benefit the organization. The two-hour program will feature a short talk by Ms. Burch about cancer and the environment, and a discussion following the film. Tickets will be available in the post office lobby both days. The Wall of Hope is launching its national Mile of Survival® effort, and will be taking names of survivors located in other states who may want to add their pictures to the exhibit or act as Event Coordinators in their own towns to help collect pic-tures for the mile-long display for Washington D.C. The exhibition of the Mile of Survival is projected to take place in the nation's capital sometime in the next two to three years. Each state needs to contribute 750 pictures which will be a 100-foot section of the mile-long exhibit. When complete, the Mile of Survival will be carrying more than 37,500 portraits. For further information, con-tact the Wall of Hope at 925.736.7100 or visit www.wallofhope.org.

Police to Present 'Gang Awareness' Workshop

Are gangs a problem in Liver-more? California has more gangrelated problems than any other state in the nation-with an estimated 300,000 members belonging to more than 6,100 gangs. Nationally, half of all gang-violence victims are innocent bystanders caught in the crossfire. The Livermore Police Department (LPD) attributes increased local gang activity to about 250 documented gang members and associates belonging to three major gangs in two categories.

On Wednesday, March 21, 2007, a free presentation entitled "Gang Awareness" will be offered by the Livermore Citizens' Police Academy Alumni Association (CPAAA) and the Livermore

Hart Student Wins County Spelling Bee

Three of the top four Alameda County school spelling bee winners are from the Tri-Valley.

Finishing first was Neethi Bangalore, a 6th grader from Hart Middle School in Pleasanton. Second place went to Fifth grader Akshayraj Aitha from Fallon Elementary School in Dublin. In third was Alexis Hager, 4th grade, Crocker Highlands Elementary in Oakland, and fourth place went to Nathan Weinstein, a sixth grader from Christensen Middle School in Livermore.

The two top finishers, from Dublin and Pleasanton, will represent Alameda County at the state competition on May 19 at Sonoma State.

Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD). It is scheduled to run from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at the Robert Livermore Community Center, located at 444 East Avenue in Livermore. Additional parking is available on the Loyola Street side of the park.

The seminar will be conducted by members of the Livermore Police Department. They will discuss the warning signs of gang association, school policies regarding gangs, and how to re-port gang activity. There will be opportunities for questions and answers after the presentation.

The seminar is one of a series presented by the Livermore Police Department and sponsored by the CPAAA and LARPD. A subsequent presentation on Thursday, April 26 at 7:00 p.m. will explore the topic of "Traffic Issues in Livermore." The CPAAA is an organization of members from the community who have graduated from the Citizens Police Academy. For more information, please visit www.livermorepolice.org.
